HERE IS TRUTH IN PHONE STRIKE

The younger element of the telephone strikers are exercising the well-known woman's privilege of changing their minds. Their leaders believe the terms offered by the company should be accepted and the fight officially be declared off.

The same sentiment prevailed at the first meeting of the regional council.

Meetings and conferences are being held today by leaders of the national department of the telephone operators with the leaders of the various locals for the purpose of coming to some definite conclusion relative to the new situation which has arisen by reason of the refusal of a number of local unions to ratify the agreement and by the unexpected action of a few in voting

MRS. DOANE 'BROKE' IN NEWARK

Runaway Mother's Arrest Is Ordered; Alice Dow With Her

Mrs. Vivian Doane, nineteen-year-old Salisbury mother, who deserted her babies, Frank and Lillian, in the hall of a house at No. 15 Shepherd avenue, Roxbury, a few days ago and fled to New York, has been located in Newark.

Police of that city have been asked to arrest her. She is wanted for abandonment and for the alleged theft of $140 from her young husband, Roger Doane.

Police Chief Congdon of Salisbury received a wire today from Mrs. M. R. Srerreg of No. 493 Elizabeth avenue, Newark. It read:

"Vivian Doane and Alice Dow are at my home broke. They want to return to Salisbury. Wire funds."

Instead Chief Congdon wired Newark police to arrest the young women. He left today to bring them home.

Alice Dow is wanted for breaking jail in Salisbury following her arrest for being disorderly. She is 17 years old. She accompanied Mrs. Doane when the latter bundled up her two-year-old son, Frank, and seven-months-old daughter, Lillian, and fled in a taxicab from the town she had found "too slow." This was last Monday.

Finding the deserted babies created a sensation. They were identified at

Dempsey's Portrait in Art Exhibit Causes Talk

Kansas City, Mo., July 20.—Jack Dempsey's portrait, on exhibition at the Kansas City Art Institute in a collection of fifty-four works by Western artists, is causing visitors at the exhibit to be quizzical. None recalls a previous gallery that included the picture of a fistic champion. Many pass it by with a knowing nod of approval—an excellent portrayal of brute manhood.

Women connoisseurs, teacups in hand, find difficulty in establishing a connection. "Is art being degraded by establishing itself with the prize ring?" they ask.

The portrait, 29 by 41 inches, painted in oil by Alonzo Victor Lewis of Seattle.

HUNT 'WILD WOMAN' IN MELROSE

A wild woman, whose ghoulish screams at midnight have terrified residents of Dexter road, Melrose, is being sought by the police.

From midnight to early this morning seven policemen, under the command of Lieutenant William Fahey, scoured the woods around Dexter Road from Swains Pond avenue to Broadway on the Melrose-Malden line.

For some time complaints have bene made to the police by residents of that section concerning maniacal screams of the wild creature.

Those who have glimpsed the women describe her as about 20 years old, attired in a loose flowing blue gown, and a flaming red hat with a visor-like front.

The spot of these midnight vocalizations is the scene of the brutal murder of Tootsie Wakeland, but it not a ghost that the lieutenant is looking for.

FIREBUG IN CHELSEA HUNTED

Puts Torch to Five Buildings, Causing Loss of Over $100,000

A firebug set the torch to Chelsea buildings causing over-night $100,000 damage and threatening to duplicate the disaster of 1908.

One tenement, three factories and a stable were destroyed. Whole blocks of properties were threatened.

Following an Investigation today Fire Chief David M. Hudson said:

"I have discovered that a pyromaniac lives in the very heart of where this fire took place and am convinced that he set the blaze today. I found five buildings going at one time when I arrived. That looked suspicious to me.

"A later investigation revealed the fact that a firebug lives here and [illegible] has already been known to have set two other fires.

SET OTHER FIRE.

"He set a group of buildings on fire on Third street, Chelsea, recently. They were destroyed. Owners were absolved from any connection because of the small amount of insurance carried on the bluldings.

"This applies to today's fire. Very

HAYES AND SULLIVAN BATTLE

Beverly's Two-Gun Police Head Batters Attorney When Lie Is Passed

Salem, July 20.—"Lightning Jack" Hayes, Beverly's "Shooting Police Chief," who sent two occupants of an automobile into hospitals with bullets in their bodies a month back, assaulted a lawyer in Salem Court today.

Angered by remarks of Attorney Thomas S. Sullivan, former Beverly city solicitor, "Lightning Jack" rushed at the counsellor, and living up to his "Lightning" cognomen, shot two blows from the shoulder, felling the atotrney.

The courtroom was thrown into an uproar. Attendants rushed at the police official and held him. Water was tossed on the fallen attorney and he was brought back to his senses.

Chief Hayes apologized in open court and the trial was resumed.

The atack was prompted by the

EIGHT PERSONS RESCUED IN GENERAL ALARM CHELSEA FIRE

17 HORSES LED TO SAFETY

little insurance was carried by any of the property owners."

Deputy fire marshals from the State Department of Public Safety and Chelsea police today scoured the neighborhood for trace of the pyromaniac. The fire marshals were at the ruins as soon as ashes could be cooled to permit an investigation. What they discovered caused them to communicate with police.

"A short time after the blaze was underway," said Chief Hudson, "I received nine different versions of the cause of the blaze. I became suspicious."

A general alarm was sounded and help was rushed from Boston, Revere, Everett and Winthrop.

Eight persons had been rescued by the time the first fire apparatus arrived.

Starting in the rear of the three-story frame tenement at No. 211 Second street, the fire burned toward Summer street, leveling three buildings in its way.

Frank Boaka, No. 211 Second street, in whose home the fire started, his wife and six children: Laddie and Julia, eight-year-old twins; Jenny, six years old; Peter, ten years old; John, seven years old, and Alex, two years old were awakened and carried from their home by neighbors.

The Boston Leather Company building, the Winnisimmett Woolen Company and the Rubenstein Rug Company buildings, all on Second street, were destroyed early in the conflagration.

Seventeen horses were rescued from the Coleman's stable, next in the path of the fire, which was also destroyed.

15 FLEE FIRE.

Fifteen persons living in the tenement house at No. 205 Second street were forced to flee from their homes when their rooms became filled with smoke and the house was covered with flying embers.

The shops of J. Glazer and R. Kaplin, at No. 110 Summer street, were in danger of destruction several times, as sparks ignited the roof of the building occupied by the two firms.

Other buildings threatened, or partly burned, were these: Cohen Brothers & Korsh, woolen goods and paper, and Boston Wool Stock Company, both on Summer street, and Abrahamson & Wait, paper stock company, on Carter street.

Residents of the tenement houses near the scene of the fire moved their belongings into the street.

The horses released from De Coleman's stable ran about the streets, adding to the confusion of the men, women and children from the tenement houses.

Louis Mercier, No. 7 Cross street, Chelsea, and Isadore Isaac Dean, No. 42 Carmel street, Chelsea, are credited with rescuing the horses from the DeColeman stable.

CROWD GATHERS.

Persons from all parts of Chelsea, variously estimated at from 3,000 to 5,000 in number, crowded the streets in the wooden and tenement district to watch the fire.

All the Chelsea police were called out to keep the throngs back of the fire lines and out of the way of the firemen.

Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley of Chelsea, many Chelsea clergymen, and numerous volunteers helped maintain the fire lines, or organized citizens brigades to wet down the sides of buildings threatened by the fire.

BREEZE FANS SPARKS.

A stiff breeze carried sparks from the burning wood buildings and set fire to the roofs of more than a score of buildings in the vicinity. Sentinels on the house-tops wetted down the roofs and extinguished embers when they fell.

The fire was discovered by Patrolman George Finn of the Chelsea police, who turned in the first alarm, and started to awaken residents in the community.

INQUIRY BEGUN.

Rumors that the fire was of incendiary origin were given credence by the fire chiefs who took part in combatting the fire.

Today, the State board of fire examiners began an investigation into the cause of the fire.

Members of the Salvation Army, American Red Cross, and various local organizations, were on hand with generous refreshments for the firemen and others assisting in subduing the conflagration.

EAST BOSTON SCARE.

East Boston had a fire scare a few hours before the Chelsea fire started. Sparks from passing towboats started a fire at shed No. 30 of the National Dock & Storage Warehouse Company. The damage was estimated at $10,000, due chiefly to the inundation of 500 bales of wool with both salt and fresh water.

The fire started in the front room of the shed facing the water. The entire front of the wooden structure was afire before fire apparatus arrived. Fireboats No. 31 and No. 47 fought the fire from the water side.

For a time a large section of the East Boston waterfront, was in danger.

An hour after the fire started Chelsea fire department officials announced that the fire was under control.

WHELAN IN GIANT TOBACCO MERGER

George J. Whelan, United Cigar Stores chieftain, formerly of Boston, is planning the world's largest tobacco combine. According to reports in trade circles, the plans are nearly completed.

The Tobacco Products Corp. and the British-American Tobacco Co. with possibly Philip Morris Co., Ltd. will comprise the merger it was said.

With Mr. Whelen, James B. Duke and E. R. Tinker were reported today to be conferring in London with the British-American Tobacco Co. officials.

About $30,000,000 new capital will probably be issued. The Tobacco Products Corp. may recall its preferred stock and Class "A" shares may be exchanged for first preferred shares in the new company, which is expected to be formed within a month.

LONDON DOCK STRIKE SERIOUS; POLICE EQUIP FOR RIOTS

London, July 20 (I.N.S.).—Policemen, equipped for riot service, were on duty in the dock districts of British port cities today to prevent violence by dock strikers. The situation is serious.

Government officials are making an inquiry to ascertain the source of strike funds and to learn if they are coming from Communists. Some of the workers have returned, but most of them are still holding out.

The food shortage has improved slightly owing to the decision of the market workers to return to their posts on condition they are not asked to handle merchandise passing through the hands of strike breakers.

GIRL VANISHES EN ROUTE TO BOSTON

On June 26, 17-year-old Emily E. Pottier of Belleville, Nova Scotia, took the boat at Yarmouth for Boston. That was the last seen of her.

Miss Pottier, who is a school teacher, closed her school on that day and in hasty preparation left for Boston to visit her sister, Miss Marie E. Pottier, who lives at No. 215 Hancock street, Everett. Her sister can give no account for her disappearance other than she has met with foul play.

It was thought by her sister, after communication with her parents in Nova Scotia that the girl might be in New York, for she had intended making that visit to relatives. However, word from the relatives reveal no trace or word from the youthful teacher.

The missing teacher is 5 feet 4 inches tall; has dark hair, done up; and weighs about 122 pounds. Occasionally she wears eyeglasses, and she had quite a bit of money on her person.

German Rescues 2 French; May Save 7 Compatriots

Berlin, July 20.—Max Fladt, a German hotel keeper in the Rhineland, saved two French soldiers from drowning in the Rhine.

"Have you any special request to make?" asked the French Commander.

"I would like to save the lives of seven Germans who were recently sentenced to death," replied Fladt.

The request is under advisement.

WOMAN DRINKS POISON AFTER A QUARREL

Mrs. Esther Coes, a Dorchester wife, drank a bottle of iodine in the presence of her sister-in-law and is dying at City Hospital.

Mrs. Coes, who is thirty-two years old and lives at No. 167 Sidney street, Dorchester, took the poison during a family quarrel, according to the police.

The sister-in-law is Mrs. Ethel Coes. She occupies the apartment under that of the poison victim.

Mrs. Esther Coes, according to the police, was engaged in a quarrel in her own apartment. She ran downstairs to the home of her sister-in-law. Before the latter could stop her, Mrs. Coes swallowed the poison.

The sister-in-law telephoned for Dr. J. W. Redmond of No. 512 East Broadway, South Boston. The physician ordered the woman removed to City Hospital.

Ralph Coes, the husband of the woman who drank the poison, was notified and hurried to the bedside of his wife at the hospital.

GIRL FIGHTING SUIT TO ANNUL MARRIAGE

street, Boston. Lena says they eloped a year ago last April.

Moses says he was forced into the marriage by Lena's parents.

In about a week all Lena had of Moses' love was a scrap of paper, she says, the paper which reads, "I love you, Lena Winthrop," etcetera.

Now she will take that into court and fight Moses' attempt to dissipate their marriage. She also has a few letters, 200 of them, she says. They are signed "Your Mosie," she alleges.

"Mosie" was her pet name for him. Today she said:

ARDENT WOOER.

"I kept company with Mosie Drooker for three years before he married me," she said. "He was an ardent wooer. He just couldn't stay away from me; he used to come and stay at my home three days a week.

"Finally, one day Mosie said to me, 'We will have to get married. I just can't live without you. Let's elope.'

"We made our plans very quietly and on April 7, 1922, we hopped the midnight train to New York and got married.

"We went on a honeymoon. Not a very long one but it was a honeymoon and then we came home. I came back to my home and Mosie went to live with his parents. We both told our families what we had done.

"My father and mother got busy and we had a big reception. We were both very happy; very happy.

"Then after awhile my father and mother gave my husband some money with which to start in business.

HAD HIM ARRESTED.

"A week after he got the money, Mosie jumped out. He hasn't even contributed toward my support.

"I had to have him arrested last December. Judge Thomas G. Gallagher ordered him to pay $5 a week toward my support."

Mrs. Drooker has retained Attorneys O'Brien, Malevinsky and Driscoll of Boston and Attorneys Hoy and O'Connell of Fitchburg to fight Drooker's annulment suit. They maintain the annulment proceedings cannot go on because the couple never maintained a home in New York.

SILENT 9 YEARS.

In connection with the suit of young Drooker was revealed a mystery in connection with his parents.

For nine years Barnet Drooker has not spoken a word, it is said, to his wife although they long occupied the same Roxbury home. His wife told of an earlier romance in the life of her husband; he broke the engagement to marry her and said:

"About nine years ago he declined absolutely even to talk to me and I was obliged to treat him with the most absolute silence. He was never brutal in the physical sense, never in most things really unkind. I bear him absolutely no rancour."

exchange of the word "liar." Attorney Sullivan was appearing for persons arrested by Chief Hayes for

"Lightning Jack's" veracity has been questioned several times since the night in June he halted, by pistol shots, a motor car driven by Frank W. Bemis and containing another man and two girls.

The shots found a mark in Evelyn Spinney and John Winston. The girl is still in the hospital.

Hayes charged the car was going between thirty and forty miles an hour. Several witnesses testified at Bemis' trial for speeding and violating an order to stop that the car was not going more than fifteen miles an hour. The car was halted in North Beverly near the railroad crossing.

ACCUSED OF BUYING JOB.

Hayes has been charged with having paid Mayor Harold Whittemore of Beverly more than $500 for his job. District Attorney William G. Clark of Essex County, who has asked that "Lightning Jack" be removed from office, says he has affidavits to prove the charge.

Hayes is defendant in a $50,000 damage suit brought by Fred A. Tindley, Beverly newspaper man, who charges the police chief "railroaded" him into Danvers Insane Asylum.

The attack was prompted by the ing Chief" was filed this week by the father of young Winston, asking $50,000 damages for the shooting of his son.

Winston is a Lynn High School student as is the wounded Miss Spinney. Miss Spinney recently filed a $10,000 damage suit against the "Shotting Chief."

FEELING RUNS HIGH.

Beverly and Lynn has rocked with public indignation since "Lightning Jack" used wild Western tactics in halting the Bemis automobile.

Wealthy citizens in Lynn demand teh chief's removal following the occurrence. A petition was later circulated in Beverly demanding the official's removal.

Still later public officials busied themselves and demanded publicly that Beverly's Mayor remove the "two-gun" man.

Today's disturbance in court is said to hav culminated in bad feeling between Hayes and Sullivan growing out of a political campaign a year old.

STARTED OVER "LIAR."

Judge George B. Sears was presiding in court when the fisticuffs took place today.

Attorney Sullivan, according to witnesses, was taken off his guard by the sudden attack of the chief. He went down almost before he could raise a hand. A wordy battle preceded the assault.

Judge Sears allowed the police chief to ask a question of a witness in the speeding case to which Attorney Sullivan objected. The attorney objected repeatedly, charging that the question was "unfair." In the discussion which folowed the word "liar" was spoken.

"Lightning Jack," in apologizing, directed his remarks to the court and not his adversary. He said: "I am sorry to have caused such a disturbance." Whereupon Judge Sears ordered the case to go on.

Hyman Stein, owner of the properties at Nos. 211, 215 and 217 Second street, was the heaviest loser in the Chelsea blaze today. His loss was estimated at $35,000. It included a new automobile truck which was destroyed. It is the second time, Stein said, he had been totally cleaned out. He carried no insurance.

HERE IS TRUTH IN PHONE STRIKE SITUATION

first to accept and then voting to refuse to do so.

HAVE HAD ENOUGH.

Here is the truth about the situation so far as it affects a large majority of the girl strikers.

They have had enough of the strike.

They want to get back to their switchboards.

It was fun shouting and cheering the speakers at the meetings for a while and a thrilling bit of life on the picket lines.

The strike spirit of the girls has been high from the start when they have congregated in groups. Leaders felt assured, however, after the second week, that the serious, sober sentiment of most of them was in favor of calling the strike off if the integrity of the union organization could be preserved.

That was why they were willing to have Governor Cox try to obtain terms of settlement two weeks ago. The leaders were disappointed when he made the statement that his sole interest was in seeing public service maintained and that, after a talk with President Jones of the telephone company, he had reason to believe adequate service would be furnished.

SPECIAL COMMITTEE.

The effort of Mayor Curley to influence the company to arbitrate was looked upon with favor and the attempts of the committee of New England mayors was welcomed.

The company's reply to all these agencies that it would not back down, but would deal with the strikers direct was taken to mean that the officials were in a proper frame of mind to deal with a committee from the union.

Accordingly, a conference was arranged with George H. Dresser, general manager of the company. This meeting had the approval of the entire wage scale committee. It was thought best not to have all the members confer with the telephone official and so a special committee consisting of Miss Julia O'Connor, president of the union, Mr. Mary Q. Wynne of Springfield and Miss Mary H. Brady of Providence, was named to handle the situation with him.

They did not expect he would yield on the two big points, more pay and a shorter day, and they were pleased when he did not insist upon repudiation of union membership when girls sought return to work.

ACCEPTED REPORT

These three leaders brought back to the regional council a report that was accepted and recommended to the local unions.

The leaders felt they had gained concessions from the company that were valuable to their organization. Many of the girls who have been active workers in the strike have admitted that there was not a chance of winning all of their demands and that they would be in a very much worse position in a week or so in dickering with the company. For several days there has been reason to believe many of the girls would be forced by circumstances to seek work from the company on their own hook in a short time and leaders realize it would be much better for all concerned in the strike if the girls returned under union auspices.

The union officials believe they have made the very best arrangement possible with the company for the re-employment of the strikers. They have explained to the girls that the company is not disposed to be unduly harsh or to impose wholesale penalties.

TRUE TO MISS O'CONNOR.

Miss O'Connor is cheered by the girls every time she appears at a meeting, and if she were to say the word the vote against returning would be unanimous.

But she has advised otherwise. She has pointed out where fruits of victory lie in this defeat of the strikers as told to the world by the telephone company. The Boston girls have voted to remain true to her leadership.

The chief sore spot is Providence. The girls there believe they can force the company to give in. It is a fact they have crippled the service in Rhode Island tremendously and that organized labor is solidly behind them. It also is true that there is a stronger public sentiment in their favor there than in the cities of this State, Maine or New Hampshire.

Worcester and Springfield, where unusually vigorous strike campaigns have been waged, are inclined to agree with the Providence strikers. Lynn and Lawrence voted to accept the terms and then reconsidered. Brockton girls are willing to abide by the wishes of the majority.

WANT TO ACT NOW.

Today the leaders are endeavoring, with might and main to show the girls who are obstinate that, while their spirit is admirable, their position is untenable. In the last instance the regional council of the strikers has the power to call off the strike.

This council is composed of delegates from the forty-five locals. There is an element in the council that is opposed to giving in, as they say, but it is believed the majority members are of the opinion the wisest course would be to adjust the situation now according to the terms agreed upon with Mr. Dresser than to continue indefinitely with the certainty of operators dribbling back a little later on any terms the company might see fit to impose.

The statement that Miss O'Connor has wired the local leaders not to accept the terms offered is erroneous. The time for officially calling off the strike had been fixed for 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

When she learned some of the locals were balking she wired requesting that no public announcements be made until the matter had been positively settled by the regional council.

Girl Slayer of Boy Is Demented

Today

Wheat and Oil.
High Wages and Wealth.
Don't Walk, Fly.
Says Foolish Hussein.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1923, by Star Company)

STOCKS WERE stronger yesterday, so was wheat. But wheat got its breath and started staggering upward too late to save the Republican administration from the shock of Magnus Johnson.

YOU ARE requested to buy a thousand bushels of wheat to keep the price up. You were requested some time ago to buy a bale of cotton.

Notice the difference between wheat, that the farmer must plant, harvest and thresh, after plowing and harrowing, and oil that comes out of the ground?

AT THIS moment in California and elsewhere oil is pouring out in quantities unprecedented. But does that knock down the price of gasoline? Not enough to notice.

Standard Oil steps in and buys 36,000,000 barrels at a time. That steadies things. And intelligent men, closely united, take good care that the extra supply of oil shall not mean a cheaper price for gasoline.

What do you think would happen to the farmers and the price of wheat if wheat began suddenly boiling up out of the earth?

Go to the Standard Oil Company, Mr. Farmer. Learn something, and be wise.

OFFICE BOYS, little ones, earn more per week than a first-class workman earned before the war.

The average factory wage in Illinois is $28 a week. Thousands of workmen go to work in automobiles. Conservative oil gentlemen, shaking their heads, wonder what the world is coming to. The answer is, "The world is coming to better times." High wages are the best possible thing for any country, better even for the rich than the poor.

Where does the rich man think he gets his money, unless from money that tens of millions of little men can earn, and can spend.

TWENTY THOUSAND members of the I. W. W. will start marching from all over, to Port Arthur, Texas, to protest against the mobbing of three I. W. W.s.

The twenty thousand I. W. W.s may enjoy their long march, but the day for expeditions on foot has gone by. Even in the days of the Jacquerie, nearly six hundred years ago, when peasants broke loose in France and started marching and destroying, they accomplished nothing. Charles the Bad soon quieted them.

To produce any effect in these days, don't walk. Get a machine and fly.

IT IS ONLY fair and friendly to warn the marching I. W. W.s that Port Arthur promises to each one of them a job. All appearing in Port Arthur with no available means of support will be at once accommodated on the road gang.

IT IS ANNOUNCED from Jerusalem that King Hussein of the Hedjas, a freak creation of the war, favors a Moslem-Christian union, to keep Jews from controlling Palestine. Moslem and Christian make queer bedfellows. When the Crusades were on, Moslem was murdering Christian and Christian murdering Moslem. And recently the Turkish police were busy keeping different brands of Christians from killing each other in quarrels over the holy places. It would seem about time to give the Jews a chance—especially as it is their own country.

NEVER GAMBLE in stocks, but watch railroads carefully, if you are a cautious investor. Rates are high, freight plentiful. Note one single item: Mr. Underwood's Erie Railroad in the whole of 1922 had net earnings of $644,911.

In the first five months of 1923 the Erie's earnings were $6,415,055. That road made, in five months this year, ten times what it made in the whole of 1922.

COMMANDER SIGSBEE, who commanded the Maine, died yesterday. How quickly old wounds are healed and we forget.

For those under thirty the name of Sigsbee has no meaning; that of the battleship Maine but little.

So it will be with the great war in a few years. Time changes the memory, as it changes the bullet-torn battlefields.

PRINCIPALS IN CHELSEA TRAGEDY

BRITAIN TO ASK FRANCE TO CUT RUHR ARMY

London, July 20 (AP)—Additional alterations were made otday in the draft reply to Germany's reparation memorandum by the British Cobinet. Unless expedient to make eleventh-hour changes the document probably will be dispatched to the allied and American governments tonight.

It seems safe to accept the prediction that the note will deal with appointment of an international committee of experts to appraise Germany's assets and suggest Great Britain is prepared to ask France to reduce the occupationary forces to a minimum so that Germany's industrial and mining plants in that region shall be free to contribute to the payment of reparations. In return for this Germany will be expected to countermand all ordinances for passive resistance.

It is also considered certain that Great Britain will not offer to cancel the French, Italian and Belgian debts, as suggested by some reports.

RUSH PLANS FOR ELECTION IN IRELAND

London, July 20.—Darrell Figgis, member of the Dail Eireann, is quoted by the Dublin correspondent of the Westminster Gazette as saying he has been warned by the local manager of the Ministerial Party for the County of Dublin that preparations are being rushed for an early election in the Free State and he advises condidates to get ready for a campaign.

COURT FREES NEGRO; LAWYER "NO GOOD"

Jackson, Mississippi, July 20.—Convicted "solely because he did not employ a good lawyer," John Watt, negro life term convict, was pardoned by Governor Russell, who gave the foregoing reasons for executive clemency. The Governor did not name the attorney who defended Watt.

HAD MANIA TO DROWN OTHERS

Mother Admits Her Daughter Wanted to Push Other Children Into Water

"Surely they will never harm little Elizabeth for what she has done. She did not mean to kill little Sonny. The poor girl is not normal mentally. I pray that they will send her away to a good hospital for treatment where she will get well."

This is the tearful plea of Mrs. Libby L. McDonald, mother of thirteen-year-old Elizabeth McDonald, who confessed that she pushed little James MacDonald of Chelsea into the water from the Texas Company's wharf in Chelsea and drowned him.

The girl was taken into custody by the Chelsea police and is now in the care of the Massachusetts Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children. She will appear in the Chelsea Court, Juvenile section, Thursday, on a charge of murder.

EXAMINATION BY ALIENISTS.

Meanwhile the mother's plea will be at least partly carried out. The little girl will be examined by mental specialists as to her sanity. The mother says she had Elizabeth examined at the Psychopathic Hospital a short while ago and that she was told the girl had the mind of a of but six years of age. She has been examined in the past by Physician F. J. Mahoney, who declared she should be placed in a hospital.

The mother confirmed the police report that the girl has pushed several other children into the water in the past. It seemed to be a mania with her. Only a few weeks ago, according to the mother, she pushed her own sister, Mabel, into the water from the same dock where James MacDonald met his death.

BOY PUSHED IN.

Little Joseph Nadworny of Marginal street declared that it was last Summer that Elizabeth pushed him into the water.

Mrs. Annie Noftle of Suffolk street also told of how the girl pushed her five-year-old boy, Tommy, into the water from the same wharf.

"That girl was surely demented," she said. "Why, she asked my boy to jump in. When he wouldn't she pushed him in. That was late last Winter."

Another lad, named James Larnor, formerly of East Boston, was also a victim of the girl, according to the police.

MOTHER OF ACCUSED GIRL

Left to right, John McDonald, brother of Elizabeth; Mrs. Libby L. McDonald, parent of Elizabeth and Mabel McDonald, sister of little girl under arrest, who was rescued after her sister had shoved her off a wharf recently.

FLIER IN TRAGEDY BANNED

The flier's license of Caldwell S. Phillips, army lieutenant who piloted the defective plane which caused the death of a passenger in Boston harbor, was revoked today by the State.

On the heels of the revocation came word that a State board of aeronautic experts, headed by Prof. Edward P. Warner of Tech, was in session, to take action on the accident.

Others on the board are Lieutenant R. C. Moffat of the Army Base, best known of the Boston pilots; Theodore E. Hedlund, Arthur L. Richmond and Raymond P. Baldwin.

John J. Stevens, a civilian aviator of Littleton, N. H., met death when Phillips' plane plunged into the harbor. He was drowned. The disbarred flier made unsuccessful efforts to rescue him.

The defective plane was a Canadian-Curtis, owned by the dead man. It was operated by Phillips.

PLANE CONDEMNED.

Frank A. Goodwin, State registrar of motor vehicles, revoked Phillips' license to fly in this State. He said:

"Phillips was flying an unregistered plane. It never should have been driven a foot. It had been condemned by the Army. If it was unsafe for the Army it was unsafe for him."

Registrar Goodwin was asked if he had sufficient power to revoke the aviator's license of any aeronaut of the United States Army or Navy.

"If he were a regular army aviator," said Goodwin, "we would leave it to the army to take care of him. Phillips was on the reserve list. We have a right to take away his license.

"I guess the army will not permit him to fly here again. We take away the auto licenses of mail truck drivers for violation of our laws and Uncle Sam always co-operates with us."

SCORES SAW ACCIDENT.

The plane plunged into the harbor off Sumner street, East Boston, in view of a dozen members of the Jeffries Yacht Club. Phillips was rescued by yachtsmen.

Phillips blamed the weakness of the right wing for the accident.

"The right wing was out of line," he said. "I noticed it the other day when Stevens asked me to pilot the machine."

MOTHER KLAN RAPS NATIONAL KLUXERS

Atlanta, Ga., July 20.—Nathan Bedford Forest, Klan number one of Atlanta, known as "the mother klan of the world" has adopted a resolution "to at no time in the future recognize, contribute to or in any manner affiliate with the national organization of the first order of the Ku Klux Klan, until such time as the national organization has been purged and different officials placed in control."

PADDLEFORD, OIL MAN, WINS DIVORCE

Los Angeles, July 20.—Dr. George E. Paddleford, oil operator, was granted a divorce here from Mrs. Genevieve M. Paddleford, whom he charged with cruelty. Mrs. Paddleford filed a cross complaint. Witnesses told of Mrs. Paddleford's experiences with the police in Austria and Switzerland, all of which she denied upon her return to Los Angeles a few months ago.

Converted by Hotel Bibles Stolen From Gideons

Oklahoma City, Okla., July 20.—Bibles placed in hotels by the Gideons are sometimes stolen, according to J. Harry Humphreys, who is presiding over the annual convention here of the National Association of Gideons, Christian commercial travelers.

But in some cases, at least, the pilfered Bibles have had a salutary effect. Several persons who deliberately "took" Bibles belonging to the Gideons were converted, returned the Bibles and have made substantial payments toward carrying on the work of the Gideons, Mr. Humphrey declared.

GIRL, FEARING COURT ORDEAL, TAKES POISON

Natick, July 20.—Confronted in the court room by her alleged attacker, Miss Esther Morse, daughter of Mrs. Lydia E. (Morse) Brummit of Pinewood Villa, West Natick, drank half an ounce of poison in an attempt at suicide.

She is a sister of Mrs. Blanche Anderson, the woman who impersonated Anna Q. Neilson, the movie star, in a Milford theatre last Winter, causing a nine-day sensation.

Miss Morse had come to court to testify against Alfred McHado, twenty-two years old, of No. 102 Clark street, Framingham, who is charged with an assault on her and a statutory offence.

FEARED TO TESTIFY.

Miss Morse's reasons for drinking the poison, she said, was her abhorrence at the sight of her alleged attacker, and her fear to face the ordeal of testifying in court.

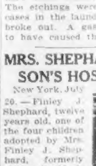
The case was continued until July 30, and McHado was released on bail.

State Officer Callahan charges that he discovered McHado and Miss Morse in the bushes off Pinewood Villa, Monday night at a late hour.

Miss Morse contends that fear of bodily injury by McHado prompted her to submit to the meeting and others on previous nights. She declared that at one time he showed her a revolver. A search of his rooms by the police failed to disclose the weapon, however, it is said.

MEDICI PAINTINGS DAMAGED BY FIRE

Many etchings and copies of old masters, famous heirlooms of the Medici family of Florence, Italy, were damaged by fire at the home of Colonel Edward H. Eldridge, U. S. A., at No. 44 Chestnut street, Beacon Hill.



Mrs. Eldridge.

Cresside Peruzzi dei Medici Eldridge, wife of the Colonel, had brought them here from Florence only recently. The etchings were still in packing cases in the laundry when the fire broke out. A gas iron is believed to have caused the blaze.

MRS. SHEPHARD NEAR SON'S HOSPITAL COT

New York, July 20.—Finley J. Shephard, twelve years old, one of the four children adopted by Mrs. Finley J. Shephard, formerly Helen Gould, is recovering at Roosevelt Hospital, where he was operated on for appendicitis. Mrs. Shepherd occupies an adjoining room at the hospital and spends every waking hour at the bedside of her adopted son.

DENOUNCES LAWRENCE LANDLORDS

Hultman Flays Brothers Who Boosted Rents Nearly 100 Per Cent.

Two Lawrence landlords who boosted the rents of their helpless tenants nearly 100 per cent. today were publicly denounced for their "exorbitant and unwarranted" increases by Chairman Eugene C. Hultman of the Commission on the Necessaries of Life.

The denunciation was contained in the first decision on any specific case out of the 100 complaints made by gouged and gypped tenants since Hultman declared that many of the tenements in Lawrence were unfit for occupancy by human beings.

Complaint was made against Adolph and Walter Graichen by their ten tenants who live in wooden buildings on Butler street. They furnish their own kitchen stoves. They are without furnaces, using small stoves in Winter.

The tenements, which were repaired by the tenants at their own expense, were in good condition.

BOOSTED $5 A WEEK.

The tenants were paying $5.50 and $6 a week. The Graichens bought the property in May and boosted the rent to $11. The tenants complained and the brothers agreed to knock off $1.

Hultman said today in his report that the property was assessed for only $13,650, yet the Graichens claim they paid $35,000 for it and got a mortgage out of the Broadway Savings Bank for $20,000.

He said that on the rent of $11 a week, the Graichens would make 20 per cent. a year on their investment.

"In view of the shortage of housing accommodations in Lawrence," said the report, "Messrs. Graichen have treated the tenants in an inhumane manner by starting summary eviction proceedings while the complaints of the tenants were being investigated.

TYPICAL CASE.

"It is the duty of landords to protect the welfare of tenants just as tenants must take care of the property entrusted to them.

"Speculation which is not productive is destructive. Speculation in existing dwelling property which imposes unreasonable suffering upon the home is a matter vitally concerning public welfare and safety.

"This case appears to be typical of many cases brought recently to the attention of the Commission by tenants in Lawrence."

Hultman referred the case for action to the Lawrence Rent and Housing Commission appointed to protect tenants as a result of his recent investigations there.

PROPOSES PLAN FOR PEACE IN CHINA

The plan was formulated by Sir Robert Ho-tung, prominent and wealthy Chinese resident of Hong Kong, who was knighted by the King of England for his services in cementing British and Chinese relations.

NEXT MOTHERS' BEACH OUTING TO BE BIGGEST YET HELD

BOATS WILL CARRY 4500; GET YOUR TICKETS EARLY

Everything is set for the grandest Nantasket Beach excursion that Boston or New England has ever seen or heard of.

Next Tuesday, the Boston American will entertain 4500 Greater Boston Mothers and Children, at the famous beach, 1500 more than on previous trips this year.

All of the kind-hearted business houses and open-armed seaside entertainers have again come to the front with eats, drinks, toys and fun galore for every mother and kiddie in the party.

THREE BOATS

As was stated in yesterday's Boston American, the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Co., through the generosity of Frederick Lane, general manager, has added another big steamboat to the "Boston American Fleet." This adds accommodations for 1500 more mothers and babies. A grand total of 4500.

This is essentially a woman's proposition. It appeals most powerfully to the mother, especially to the mother with one or more little children, and who has little opportunity to get ANYWHERE.

T'CKETS ALL SOLD OUT for Tuesday, July 24

TIME BOATS LEAVE.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN HOPES THAT EVERY MOTHER WHO SENT FOR TICKETS GOT THEM. It is hardly advisable to send a little child for the tickets. Much better for the mother or father to go.

Following are the three sailings next Tuesday, July 24th:

Leave Boston (Rowe's Wharf) 9.00 A. M., 9.30 A. M., 11.00 A. M.

Leave Nantasket Wharf, 3.30 P. M., 4.15 P. M., 5.30 P. M.

IMPORTANT: No one, under any condition, will be permitted to board any boat, at either terminus, except that boat called for on their ticket.

"POOR" WATCHMAN DIES; HAD $50,000

New York, July 20 (I.N.S.).—John Pohlman, a watchman living in the Bronx, was supposed to be so poor he needed help from his neighbors. But when he died today it was found he had $50,000 in property.

"GIRL OF SWAMPS" JAILED FOR ATTACK ON MOTHER

Wausau, Wis., July 20.—Mary Lawando, "the Swamp Girl of Marathon County," is in jail in default of $1,500 bail on a charge of assault with intent to kill her stepmother.

Her incarceration is the result of her confession to District Attorney Lippert and Sheriff Siewert that she beat Mrs. Anna Lawando over the head with a heavy oak club the night of July 10.

Mary's explanation of the cause of the assault has been as vague as her brief account of her nine days' wandering in a big swamp six miles south of here, where sh fled after the attack.

5 CONDEMNED TO DEATH AFTER CAIRO CONSPIRACY

Cairo, Egypt, July 20 (AP).—Of thirteen men found guilty July 7 of a general conspiracy to murder British officials, the court today sentenced five to be hanged and the remaining eight to from three years to life imprisonment.

The case was commonly known as the Cairo conspiracy trial and was the outgrowth of hundreds of arrests following three years of murders and political outrages, connection with which was denied by the Egyptian Nationalists. The motives of the prisoners, most of whom were young men, were patriotic.

MAUGHAN WILL VISIT WIFE AND BABES

Washington, July 20.—The Army Air service announced today the attempt to make a daylight to dark flight across the continent, in which Lieutenant Maughan has failed twice had been called off for the year.

Rock Springs, Wyo., July 20. (AP).—Battling to the end in his second race to span the American continent between dawn and dusk, Lieutenant Russell L. Maughan, army aviator, lost again before the odds of mechanical weakness, which brought him down with a leaking oil cooler at Rock Springs.

Lieut. Maughan.

Lieutenant Maughan had passed Rock Springs and had covered about half the distance of the fourth leg of his four-stop flight when he realized that to continue and reach his goal—San Francisco—before nightfall, was impossible. He turned back at the Air Mail Field here at 5:08 p. m., just fifteen hours to the minute after he took off from Mitchel Field, N. Y.

Lieutenant Maughan's plane is undergoing repairs. The aviator plans today to cross the border of his home State and visit his mother at Logan, and his wife and two babies at Heber City, Utah.

Then he probably will take off on a return flight to Mitchel Field.

On the basis of the total elapsed time from Mitchel Field, Lieutenant Maughan spanned the first 1,680 miles at an average speed of 135.6 miles an hour. Altogether he covered 1,925 miles. For actual flying time it was estimated he averaged about 155 miles an hour.

Mrs. Maughan Elated Over Flier's Safety

Heber City, Utah, July 20.—Disappointment over the failure of her husband to complete his ocean to ocean flight, was almost submerged today in Mrs. Russell Maughan's elation over his safety.

"I had hoped this would be Russell's last desperate chance," she said. "I had wished it might be successful, but I am not crestfallen because it failed. He did demonstrate that it wasn't the lack of human endurance, but mechanical weakness that prevented the feat from being accomplished."

Ford Buys Antiques in Ohio to Put in Wayside Inn

Columbus, O., July 20.—An unassuming man dropped into the antique shop here opened by George S. Graber.

He purchased a seven-legged spinet, some chests, chairs, two pianos, other musical instruments, and some vases and crocks. In fact, he spent the entire morning in the little shop, displaying a wide knowledge of antiques.

When he left he gave his name as Henry Ford of Detroit, and said he wanted his purchases shipped to an old inn in the East he recently bought an interest in and to his Winter home at Miami, Fla.

RALPH ADAMS CRAM BOWDOIN LECTURER

Ralph Adams Cram, Boston architect, will be the Annie Talbot Cole lecturer at Bowdoin College beginning next November, according to announcement today by college authorities.

Ralph A. Cram

The lecture course was founded by Mrs. Calista Mayhew of South Orange, N. J., in memory of her niece, Mrs. Samuel V. Cole, of Norton, Mass. The series of lectures by Mr. Cram will be given at the college and will be open to the public.

WORKER SURVIVES 13,000-VOLT SHOCK

Niagara Falls, N. Y., July 20 (I.N.S.).—To come in contact with 13,000 volts of electricity and live was the experience today of George Dorrell at No. 1511 Weston avenue, an employe of the Niagara Falls Power Company. He was working at a bus bar in a Highland avenue saloon when the voltage passed through his body. He was found unconscious, but was resuscitated.

WOMAN IN LOVE TANGLE FILES SLANDER SUIT

New York, July 20.—Joseph Fleischman, of Kew Gardens, wealthy florist and Turkish bath proprietor, admitted today he had been served with a complaint in a suit for $50,000 slander damages begun by Mrs. Hopkins of 317 West 95th street, Manhattan.

Mrs. Hopkins

The slander action grew out of a suit for $500,000 against Mr. Fleischman last April by Robert Thompson Hopkins for alleged alienation of his wife's affections.

Mrs. Hopkins takes exception, according to Mr. Fleischman, to a paragraph in an affidavit filed by him in connection with the alienation suit brought by Mr. Hopkins, who is vice-president of the International Department Stores of America.

In the section in question the bath owner charged that Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins were "collusively acting together in an attempt to blackmail and extort money from me." Mr. Fleischman is 67 years old. Mrs. Hopkins is supposed to be well known in Nashville, Tenn., and in New Orleans.

The slander action charged that "false and defamatory matter" was published in the newspapers through Fleischman's affidavit.

POLICE WIN RACE TO STOP BOMB OUTRAGE

Chicago, July 20.—Police won a race with the lighted fuse of a bomb in a tenement here today, when summoned by Benjamin Angoni, a tenant, who said he had been awakened by a man who placed the explosive near the door. After lighting the fuse the man fled, according to Angoni, who ran to a corner drugstore and called the officers. They arrived in time to extinguish the fuse. The bomb contained six pounds of explosives, the police said.

FRESH NERVE OF DOG GRAFTED IN MAN'S BODY BY SURGEON

SENSITIVE AFTER 148 DAYS

British Doctors Describe Bone-Grafting and Tendon Transplantation

London, July 20.—Nerve-splicing, the most delicate operation among the marvels of modern surgery, often called "white magic," was the feature of the session of the Congress of the International Society of Surgery.

Dr. Gosset, of Paris, said he had taken a fresh nerve from a dog and had grafted it to the ulnar nerve of a man. Sensitivity was obtained in the engrafted nerve in 148 days, he said, and the power of movement in 340 days.

Using two ex-soldiers to illustrate their remarks, two English surgeons reported the results of bone-grafting and tendon transplantation made in one arm. The patient, they said, now is able to do heavy work.

At a private session Professor Giordano, of Vienna, was elected president of the next conference, which was fixed to be held in Rome in 1926.

AUTO VICTIMS LAY IN STREET 2 HOURS

Norwell, July 20.—Two men, seriously injured in an automobile smash-up, remained unconscious for two hours in a dark and lonely section of his town before anyone learned of their plight.

They are: Hillard T. Pantro of Prospect street, Norwell, and Joseph Tantro of No. 194 Dartmouth street, Boston, both at death's door in the Weymouth Hospital.

Their automobile left the road at "Dead Man's Curve," near the Codman Farm, and smashed against a tree. A passing autoist, Frank Norton, of South Boston, discovered them two hours later.

RHODE ISLAND TOWNS IN FEAR OF MANIAC

Providence, R. I., July 20.—Cranston, Hope and Norwood, villages near the State Hospital for the Insane, are terrorized by the belief that Frank Weeden, one-eyed homicidal maniac who escaped from the institution, is hiding in their midst.

Weeden is believed to be the murderer of Vincenzo Picano, seven years old, whose razor-hacked body was found in Randall's Pond, near Cranston, early this week.

Weeden escaped the day the murder is believed to have been committed.

BEVERLY'S CHIEF SUED FOR $10,000

Salem, July 20.—Suit for $10,000 against Chief of Police John E. Hayes of Beverly was filed here by John L. Winston of Lynn, as a result of the now famous shooting episode in Beverly a few weeks ago, in which Winston and Miss Evelyn Spinney were injured by a bullet fired by the chief into the automobile in which they were riding.

The criminal case now pending in the District Court here, in which Chief Hayes is charged with assault with a dangerous weapon, is expected to come to trial next Tuesday.

WORCESTER CHILD DYING FROM FALL

Worcester, July 20.—Beatrice Livsey, nine years old, of No. 24 Charlton street, is believed dying at City Hospital as a result of falling from a pile of lumber on Beacon street, near her home.

It was thought at first that the child was suffering only from slight concussion of the brain, but closer examination revealed a fracture of the skull.

MRS. GRACE LEWIS

A new and decidedly pleasant pose of the gracious Chelsea matron to whom "Dr." Louis Mansolilli, dapper optician, wrote endearing missives, but later, the police charge, started a private war, his method of attack being skillfully constructed bombs, which contained something more explosive than the sugar with which he sought to immortalize the object of his affections.

PARTY CHIEFS TALK SMITH AND A "WET" CAMPAIGN

French Lick, Ind., July 20.—Although it was reported that the candidacy of Governor Smith of New York for the Democratic Presidential nomination and the insertion of a wet plank in the party platform was the chief topic at a meeting here of Thomas Taggart, Democratic leader of Indiana; Charles E. Murphy, Tammany Hall chief, and George E. Brennan, Illinois leader, none of the leaders would indicate what took place at the conference.

The three leaders declined to make a statement when asked whether Smith's candidacy or the wet plank was discussed, but the assumption among some observers that Brennan had urged the wet cause of Smith gave backers of the New York Executive cause for encouragement.

2 BOYS ON BICYCLE KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE IN HOLYOKE

Holyoke, July 20.—An automobile killed two boys riding on a single bicycle near the Ingleside school. They were William Kellmeyer, nineteen, of No. 23 Ferry street, and Charles Koehler, seventeen, of No. 960 Main street.

The driver, William Lynch, of No. 1179 Riverside street, West Medford, chauffeur for R. Frank McElwain of the Crocker-McElwain Company, was held without bail at the police station, where he gave himself up.

Kellmeyer was killed instantly. Koehler died in the House of Providence Hospital.

HARDING VISITS 2 GLACIERS IN ALASKA

On Board U. S. S. Henderson, With President Harding, July 21 (AP).—A visit to Cordova, ocean terminus of one of the two railways piercing Alaska's interior, was the feature of today's program for President Harding, who is nearing the end of his first visit to Alaska made by a chief executive of the United States.

At Cordova he is expected to take the Copper River and Northwestern Railway for a run out to the Miles and Childs glaciers. These glaciers are on opposite sides of the Copper River at mile 49, where the stream is spanned by a mammoth steel bridge set in concrete.

GLACIER REACHED BY TRAIN.

That place is said to be the only spot in the world where even one glacier can be reached by train.

Cordova is the shipping port for the copper ore brought out from the Kennecott district by the Guggenheim interests. It was solely to reach this copper that the Copper River & Northwestern Railway, which is 131 miles long, was built.

The President's original plan, given up because the activities of the long days of an Alaskan Summer began to break Mrs. Harding down, was to travel to Chutina, the northern terminus of the C. R. & N. W. from Fairbanks, the northern terminus of the Alaska railroad, by automobile over the Richardson highway.

MRS. HARDING IMPROVES.

The time at sea is bringing Mrs. Harding back to health, according to her physicians. Both the Hardings are trying to store strength for strenuous days on the Pacific Coast after they land at Vancouver, B. C., Thursday. The Henderson is to stop at Sitka, the capital of Alaska when the Russians owned the territory, before going to Vancouver.

CRIPPLES REPORT CURES AT SHRINE

Springfield, July 20.—Letters received by residents who have friends now on pilgrimage to St. Anne's shrine in St. Anne de Beaupre, Quebec, tell of the cure of two local pilgrims, both of them cripples. Those reported cured are: Arthur N. Labonte, aged 32, who was so badly disabled that he had been a patient at the Holyoke City Hospital for nearly a year, and Miss Margaret Whalen, aged 22, of Northampton. Both Labonte and Miss Whalen left their crutches at the shrine.

300 MEN LAID OFF AT NEWPORT YARD

ATLANTIC MAN WRITES SONG FOR FORD

Henry Ford is not a candidate for President of the United States.

That is if a letter received from his secretary, Frank Campsall, by H. W. Lawrence, Jr., of No. 47 Vane street, Atlantic, has any significance.

Mr. Lawrence, who is a professor of history and political science at the Connecticut College for Women, at New London, Ct., recently wrote a Henry Ford campaign song, a parody of "Yes, We Have No Bananas."

Professor Lawrence sent the song to Mr. Ford and received the following reply:

Dear Sir:

Your song poem received and it is a decidedly good one. However, as Mr. Ford has no Presidential aspirations, we will be unable to make use of it and are returning it herewith. Very truly yours, Frank Campsall, assistant secretary to Mr. Ford.

The song written by Professor Lawrence follows:

HENRY FORD PRESIDENTIAL BANANAS.

Yes, we have no bananas;
Just political peanuts today.
We have profiteers, World War Alarms,
Striking workmen, mortgaged farms,
And scared politicians; but, say!
Let's elect that old-fashioned plain-liver,
The father of the flivver!
But yes, we prefer Ford bananas
To the old party fruits of today.

Yes, Henry has no book learnin'
It don't get you much today.
He has flivver mills and coal-mines,
Railroads and pipe-lines,
And all kinds of money. They say
He don't know American history,
Thinks "culture" a mystery;
But without any high-brow book-learnin'
He'd give a square deal right away.

Yes, we'll chance Ford bananas;
Though the scared politicians say
"He'll never be a scholar!
"He'd change our gold dollar!
"He's got too much money! And say,
"He'd ruin our occupation!
"We're the hope of the nation!"
If THEY'RE scared of Ford bananas,
That's just why WE want him, we'll say!

"SWITCH" IN HAIR SAVES GIRL'S LIFE

Kennebunk, Me., July 20.—A "switch" in the back of her hair saved the life of a girl who was thrown headlong from her motorcycle when it struck a rock on a dirt road.

She landed uninjured on the back of her head. Her companion on the rear seat was unharmed. The cycle bore a Massachusetts registration.

GIRL KILLED AS SHE CROSSED STREET

Five-year-old Grace MacCarthy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph MacCarthy of No. 67 High street, Dedham, was killed by an automobile not because she disobeyed her parents and played in the street, but as sh was crossing the street, according to her mother. She had been taking a walk with a little boy of the neighborhood.

2,000-YEAR-OLD SKULLS FOUND IN MISSOURI

Richland, Mo., July 20 (AP).—Halfway up a rugged bluff of the Ozarks, which tower above the Gasconade River, about three miles from here, have been found evidences of a prehistoric civilization which aroused the interest of archaeologists of the Smithsonian Institution, who will arrive here soon to investigate.

About a year ago, in a large cave which opens to the river, A. Steckle, the owner, who was enlarging it to make a resort for tourists, uncovered three human skulls and a number of bones, in addition to pottery and beads.

The bones were uncovered in a bed of ashes directly below a large hole in the stone ceiling, evidently made by the action of fire. More than a foot of earth covered the ashes. Because of this earth, which apparently could have come there only through decomposition, it is believed the race lived 2,000 years or more ago.

ONCE BELLE OF OLD FORT HILL, NOW "HERMIT" OF LONG WHARF

FAITHFUL TERRIER HER PAL

Mary Kiernan Tells Young Folk to Enjoy Life if They Would Stay Young

Mrs. Mary Kiernan, young and cheerful at sixty-eight, is the sole resident of Long wharf, at State street and Atlantic avenue.

To the younger generation, the simple statement that Mrs. Kiernan is the sole resident on Long Wharf means little. To the men who were swagger and debonair in the '70s, Mary Kiernan symbolizes an era of chivalry.

For Mary Kiernan was the belle of the old Fort Hill in the '70s and there is none who will gainsay it. More than one man whose place of business instead of his residence is now on State street, recalls the auburn hair and Irish blue eyes that made his heart thrill in his courting days.

LIVES ALL ALONE.

Mary Kiernan, known as the "hermit" of State street, lives alone, except for he, Irish terrier, "Peggy," in a district where women fear to venture unescorted in the evening hours.

Her Irish smile is cheerful, though at times it is wan when she speaks of her husband, and the suitors who visited her father's home when her husband was gone, when Mary Kiernan was a bride of a year and a half.

Mary did not discourage her suitors, neither did she marry them. She merely enjoyed them, in the days when fashionable and wealthy Boston lived along the waterfront.

HAS NO REGRETS.

"And if I were young again," Mary Kiernan said, "I'd do just what I did before. I'd go to theatres, dances, parties, and I'd have numerous beaux—just as I always have." She continued in unbroken reminiscence, interrupted only by the intermittent roar of elevated trains.

"And my advice to all young people is to have all the good times they can. It is all right having money, but I would rather have youth any day."

Although the former belle of the district bemoans her lost youth, there are not a dozen grey hairs on her head and her cheeks are still soft and rosy. "Why doesn't my hair turn gray? Because when I was young, I washed it every week and curled it any did everything to it that was in style. As for my skin, I never use anything on it but water. No soap has touched my face since I was a child and I have never used powder."

ADVISES TODAY'S GIRLS.

"But the girls of today ought to do one thing," she advised, "they ought to take advantage of their opportunities in school. When I was a child, living on Broad street, my teachers spoiled me because they thought I was cute. And I just relied on their liking me to pass me. When I grew up and was no longer a child, I couldn't slide by that way and I got tired of school. Teachers should not pet children and have favorites. If they hadn't petted me, I should probably not be here."

For twenty years Mrs. Kiernan has lived on Atlantic avenue within a stone's throw of her former triumphs. Since her mother's death, she has been absolutely alone. "Oh I had plenty of chances to marry tha thas made this his life's work when I was a widow, for you see my husband died only eighteen months after our marriage, and I was only twenty-three. A widow seems more popular than a girl. But I preferred to be independent, and I have been. I shall stay here forever in this district, taking a walk every night with Peggy along the wharves, where I used to go boating fifty years ago."

LILLIAN LORRAINE

The popular New York musical comedy actress has been compelled to sell her jewels worth more than $75,000 and now asks to be declared bankrupt. Her misfortunes are attributed to a fracture of her spine in 1921, when she fell upon the stage on which she was acting.

MISS LORRAINE LOST ALL IN STOCK GAME

New York, July 20.—Lillian Lorraine, stage favorite, now bankrupt, said today that she had lost $90,000 in six or seven months by playing the stock market.

She blames a firm of vanished "brokers."

Said Lillian:

"I lost my money at the time I broke my spine in 1920. I thought I was making thousands of dollars investing money in shorts and longs, the way you do in the stock market, you know. Then came my accident and within three or four weeks I lost all my money.

"Of course, all I could do about it with my back in a plaster cast was to stay still for six months. When I could get about to look up the firm there was no sign of them. So far as I know, nobody has heard of them since."

TOLD HER OF PROFITS.

Lillian has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $25,900.07. And this final step to straighten out her financial affairs comes only after the actress, who still insists on laughing at any trick of fate, has sold her diamond bracelets, pearl necklaces and rings valued at $75,000 to $100,000.

She said:

"I had friends who dealt with those brokers. That is how I heard of the firm. My friends lost a lot of money, just as I did.

TOLD HER OR PROFITS.

"For six months I thought I was doing wonderful things. I war told I was making money fast. Often they would advise me about good stocks to buy and all that. I never looked at my statement.

"I thought my brokers were thoroughly reliable, and I would no more have questioned them than I would have my bank balance.

"And besides, I couldn't understand a thing about all the figures, and I didn't try.

"Then I was in the accident and broke my spine. While I was in a plaster cast I lost everything. It took just about four or five weeks to wipe me out entirely. I was broke."

WIFE AND SON LOSE RACE WITH DEATH

Al Corey, justice of the peace and notary public, of No. 44 Cortes street, died at the City Hospital. His wife and their son, who had just arrived from New York, lost in their race with death by four hours.

IMPERSONATOR OF FILM STAR IS MISSING

Natick, July 20.—Mrs. Blanche Anderson of this town, attractive young matron, who was arrested last winter for impersonating Anna Q. Nilsson, the motion picture star, at the Milford Opera House, is being sought by the police for desertion of her four children and her invalid husband.

Mrs. Anderson, a former secret service operative, is a master-hand at make-up and impersonation. To convince the theatrical people, and the large audiences who saw her that she was Miss Nilsson, was mere child's play to her. When arrested, she told the court her impersonation was made at the instance of a film company by whom she was employed to trace stolen reels.

Mrs. Anderson, attractive and thirty, is known to have stage and movie ambitions. Hollywood has been asked to keep on the outlook for her. Meanwhile the State police patrol is searching for Mrs. Anderson. She has been missing two weeks.

BRIDESMAID AND BRIDE ON SAME DAY

Brockton, July 20.—Miss Olive Dunphe of No. 107 North Quincy street was bridesmaid at the wedding of her chum, Mrs. Winnifred Doten Billings, and later in the day was herself married to Everett L. Pratt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Pratt of North Cary street. The first wedding was at the home of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Doten, Sr., No. 216 North Pearl street. The bride, Miss Billings, is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred D. Billings. The bridegroom was H. Leslie White, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred White of No. 420 Pleasant street, Stoughton.

NANTASKET HAS NO ONE TO CART ITS RUBBISH

Nantasket, wonder resort of the South Shore, faces a problem unique in the history of that resort. Nantasket wants to know what to do with is garbage and rubbish.

John Jacobson, who holds the removal contract, was injured in an accident, and is confined in the Sturgis Hospital. The first day following the accident to Jacobson, John Corson, one of his employes, was injured and was also taken to the Sturgis Hospital. The second day following Jacobson's accident, the two remaining members of the garbage disposal personnel, Ira May and Harry Vartanian, were injured, and joined their employer in the Sturgis Hospital.

None of the accidents was serious; but the entire garbage disposal personnel is temporarily out of commission. Meanwhile, Nantasket is confronted with the problem of finding quick relief.

BROCKTON STRIKERS DELAY PICKETING

Brockton, July 20.—There is no desire on the part of the strikers to carry out their vote of Monday to picket the factories and not a complaint was received by the police. City Marshal Daniel T. Guerin had a large force of police around the factories, but they were not needed.

"The 1,000 strikers who unanimously voted Monday to go out on the picket lines must have left the city," said the police chief. "We haven't seen any of them around."

Strikers held their usual meetings during the day, but took no important action.

Tomorrow it will be hotter than today.

So speak all the complex instruments of the weather man.

Today it soared to 88 at noon. Tomorrow the sun is out to better his record, and there is every indication that the silvern tube that measures the golden calories will mount beyond 90 degrees.

This attempt of Old Sol to better his record will extend over the week-end, the weather man informs all whom it may concern.

High temperatures were characteristic throughout New England with South and Southwest winds prevailing, and unless there is an unforseen atmospheric development, the buttery spell will continue.

NORWOOD MAN FREED IN BRIBERY CASE

Stating that a State patrol officer is not a municipal officer, Judge Sanborn of Dedham District Court today discharged Paul Babel of Norwood, accused of trying to bribe Oscar LeBlanc on July 2 with a $2 bill, after having been arrested for speeding. Percy Katzman, counsel for the defendant, declared that his client could not be held for bribery, because of the status of a State patrolman. The judge upheld him.

HUNDREDS SEE GIRL RESCUED AT L STREET

Hundreds of bathers at L street, South Boston, were startled by cries for help. A man, fully clothed, raced down the beach, waded out in the water and with powerful strokes drew to the side of a sinking girl.

Joseph Coughlin.

Lashing out with both arms, the child managed to clutch her rescuer by the throat and both disapeared from view of the spectators as others started to their assistance.

After a brief struggle the man broke the youngster's hold and quickly towed her ashore, where it was discovered that she was Mary Powell, eight, of No. 355 West Sec[illegible] South Boston.

The rescuer was Joseph I. Coughlin, [illegible]-four, a life guard who was returning to the beach from home at No. 65 Farragut oard, South Boston.

Butler, N. J., July 20 (I.N.S.).—Mrs. Marie Walkley, thirty years old, of Glen Ridge, N. J., lost her life in the same maner and place and on the same day and month as three of her brothers and sisters were killed thirteen years ago. Mrs Walkley was drowned in an attempt to save the life of her niece, Mary Weber, twelve, in Echo Lake, near here. The n[illegible] also was drowned.

RESTORES WOMAN'S YOUTH

"Black Oxen" Treatment Is Like That Described in the Novel by Gertrude Atherton

"Then Gertrude Atherton's great story, 'Black Oxen' is not wholly fiction, doctor?"

"I should say not. The plot is based on actual fact. What Miss Atherton portrays in her famous novel we are doing here in Boston every day. We are making old women young. We are turning grandmothers into debutantes. It is an actual reality. In fact, so famous has Miss Atherton's novel become and so familiar to the women of the country the thyroid gland treatment described in 'Black Oxen,' that the treatment is actually known now as the 'Black Oxen' treatment.

An amazing statement from a Boston specialist whose prominence will not allow the use of his name.

MAKE INVESTIGATION.

The editor of this newspaper, in view of the fact that "Black Oxen" will shortly be printed in the American as a serial, ordered an investigation of this remarkable coincidence. Here is the result of that investigation.

Meet Mrs. Mary A. Gavin of No. 844 Morton street, Mattapan. For 24 years she was a semi-invalid. Today she is so well her own friends do not know her. When she looks at herself in the mirror she actually has to look behind to see if some youthful lady isn't playing a trick upon her. But it's Mary Gavin she sees. It's Mary Gavin with twenty years dropped from her shoulders, a hundred wrinkles sl[illegible] from her face and with a vitality that astounds her.

She took the "Black Oxen" treatment, which is the new name for the treatment of the thyroid gland. It is not an operation, it is merely a treatment. Thyroid taken from the glands of sheep is given the patient. It affects the thyroid gland. That gland is located in the front of the neck.

CHEATS OLD AGE.

It is such an important gland that when under-functioning it is known to cause imbecility, intertia, physical defectiveness, premature old age, languidness, stupidity, in fact almost anything.

The cure is the BLACK OXEN treatment, the giving of thyroid to cure the defective gland. However, the treatment is available to more than thos invallded. A normal person in "BLACK OXEN" cheats old age, which is why women all over the country are interested in Gertrude Atherton's great novel.

Mrs. Mary Gavin was admitted to the Boston City Hospital. She was under observation for several weeks. Then Dr. Louis J. Ullian advised the thyroid treatment. Her instantaneous reaction to it has proved astonishing; as astonishing in fact as the experience of the heroine in Miss Atherton's great novel, "Black Oxen." But let Mrs. Gavin tell it:

WOMAN'S STORY.

"It is like a dream to me," said Mrs. Gavin. "For twenty-four years I have been a semi-invalid, my condition becoming worse as tiem went on. I traveled from one physician to another, all agreeing that something serious was the matter, but none of them able to make a diagnosis. The symptoms, they said, appeared to indicate acute heart or kidney conditions, but tests failed to determine illness of this kind.

"Within the past year or two I became gradually weaker until I was unable to walk and even standing was an effort. Swelling and a network of wrinkles about my face made is embarrassing for me to go out in public.

"Last April I came for observation at the City Hospital. After several weeks of observation I entered the thyroid clinic. I underwent the metabolism test and began the thyroid treatment. The swelling of my face and the wrinkles began to disappear. Where I had ben stupid and continuously cvraving sleep, my mind became alert.

"My entire physical being underwent a change. I guess 'pep' is the only word that describes it. As a result of the treatment, I am enjoying life again and the society of my family. I am equal to the demands of my household and children.

"My particular condition requires thyroid daily. At intervals I return to the clinic for a test. The doctor assures me I shall continue to get healthier and younger-looking."

Another story about the "Black Oxen" treatment in tomorrow's Boston American.

BLACK OXEN BEAUTY TREATMENT

Metabolism outfit used to determine activity of the thyroid gland. The tank contains pure oxygen gas, which is consumed by the patient for several minutes at a time. Patient lies beneath cone attached to valve (a) at the end of the two rubber tubes. Upper tube (b) is one through which patient inhales oxygen. Patient expires carbon dioxide through lower tube (c), which passes through chemical removing carbon before returning exhaled gas to the oxygen chamber (d). The disc (e) at the top of the tank is a thermometer for registering the temperature of the gas. A low consumption of oxygen and low oxidization indicates under-activity of the thyroid. Inserted is photo of Mrs. Mary A. Gavin, who says her youth has returned.

"FACIST" OUTRAGES DENOUNCED BY POPE

RUM-RUNNING FALLING OFF; RISKS CONSIDERED TOO GREAT

Glasgow July 20 (I N S)—The rum-running business between "wet" countries and the United States is undergoing a slump. Risks have proved too great in many cases.

It is only high organized gambling syndicates that are now willing to sink money in the maintenance of a whiskey fleet off the New York and New Jersey coasts.

Greed on the part of American bootleggers has put still a further crimp in the business. Owners claim that when they reached the American coast they were compelled to dicker with hard-boiled individuals who demanded the lion's share of the profits.

American reports of pirates off the New Jersey coast, preying upon the rum fleet, has made it more difficult to sign up seamen. American "high jackies," armed with automatic pistols, which they are handy to use, have put fear into the hearts of many Glasgow sailor men who have no fear of storms at sea but dislike the possibility of a volley of bullets.

INDORSE CARTER HARRISON FOR PRESIDENTIAL RACE

Chicago, July 20.—Carter H. Harrison, five times Mayor of Chicago, was indorsed for the Democratic Presidential nomination by the Iriquois Club, which urged holding the 1924 Democratic National Convention here. The organization also indorsed Congressman Henry T. Rainey for United States Senator, and Mayor William E. Dever for Governor. The club includes many big business and professional men.

102D CHILD KILLED BY AUTO

Four Others Are Hurt in Lawrence; Man Killed, 5 Injured in Other Parts of State

The 102d child victim of autos in Massachusetts this season was killed today in Lawrence where two other youngsters were probably fatally injured and two slightly hurt in a series of auto accidents the last twenty-four hours.

Pasquale Clearini, thirty years old, of No. 76 Mellen street, Framingham, died in Union Avenue Hospital, of that city today from a fractured skull suffered in a collision with two automobiles at a curve in the road at East Holliston.

George Wyman of Leominster is believed dying at Burbank Hospital, Fitchburg, where he was taken with three companions, all seriously hurt, after his car was struck by a Boston and Maine locomotive at Lunenberg depot crossing.

CAR HURLED 40 FEET

With Wyman were Doris Fredette of No. 167 Canton street, Fitchburg, and Maude Shea of No. 14 Hardy Passway of the same city and Steve Ceruto of Middle street, Leominster. Their machine was hurled forty feet by the engine.

Edward Saba, five years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Saba of No. 36 Chase street, Methuen, was crossing Broadway and Whitman street, Lawrence, today, when a truck hove around the corner. The youngsters scattered.

Little Edward darted around the truck directly in front of an auto driven by Carl A. Smith of Granite avenue, Salem, N. H., who was arrested on a manslaughter charge. The child died almost instantly.

Silvia Midolo, three years old, was playing in the road near his home, No. 169 Newbury street, Lawrence, when he ran in front of a machine operated by Edward Swift of No. 3 Canton street, of that city. The boy suffered fractures of the left thigh and arm and internal injuries which are expected to prove fatal.

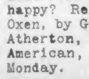
RUN DOWN NEAR HOME.

Six-year-old Kenneth Dunn, Jr., was run down near his home at No. 24 Osgood street, Lawrence, by James L. Moriarity of No. 62 South State street, Concord. The child's condition is precarious.

Alfred Rickard, three years old, playing in the street before his home, No. 9 Newton street, Lawrence, was struck by a car driven by William Gray of No. 205 Stevens street, Lowell, but did not suffer serious injury.

An unidentified youngster had his foot badly bruised when a machine turned a corner in the downtown district of Lawrence.

Edward M. Roth, of No. 5 Fresno street, Roslindale, riding a motorcycle on Centre street, near Estella street, Jamaica Plain, was hit by a truck operated by Harry Talanian, of No. 1113 Tremont street. He was taken to Peter Bent Brigham Hospital. Both legs were fractured.



They are bringing youth and beauty to old women here in Boston, by the gland operation. Will it make them more happy? Read Black Oxen, by Gertrude Atherton, in Boston American, starting Monday.

THIS is the anniversary of the passing of the forts at Vicksburg, in 1862, by Admiral Farragut. This feat left the way to New Orleans free and clear and did much to help Grant in later operations.

THE WAYS OF A HUSBAND—By ANN LISLE

A Splendid Sequel to the Famous Story of Wedded Life, "When a Girl Marries"

HOW THE STORY STARTS

Jim and Anne find happiness again on a honeymoon spent in the apartment of Betty Winston, loaned for the occasion. They go to Dreamwold for a Sunday dinner with Jeanie and are met in the grounds by Rosa, who ignores Anne. Rosa advises the discharge of Mabel Storrs to save the big salary. This Anne resents. Evvy helps Anne arrange her apartments and a dinner is given as a housewarming. Phoebe grows hysterical on receipt of Carlotta's wedding invitation. Betty speaks to Anne about Ralph's fondness for the latter.

By Ann Lisle

"My little sister is lying dead in the next room," she said dramatically. "Her life went to give Neal Hyland a child. Where is he?"

"Wandering the streets half mad," I said at random.

Jim stopped pacing up and down the apartment and turned to me.

"It was too much for him then," Pat cried, forestalling anything I might have been tempted to say.

"I'll bet he'll be in at any minute," said Jim easily. "If only Ralph Lacy weren't out of town we'd get him to help us and he'd have Neal here in a jiffy."

"Maybe he went to Ralph's apartment or to the office to find Ralph," I ventured, conscious suddenly that Ralph's lack of attention all during the terrible day had never occurred to me until now.

"Tried all that," said Jim curtly. "Tom's looking around now. Don't want to call in detectives"—

"Not the police—oh, not the police!" wailed Jeanie. "Not with Phoebe lying"——

"Quit your whimpering!" snarled Jim.

Hoping Against Hope

Pat looked at him sternly. Jim lurched forward heavily to Jeanie's side. He put his arm about her and drew her close to him. His voice was low and caressing as he spoke: It shut out Pat from me.

"Forgive me, dear," he said. "You're always so fine and brave that I forgot you have a woman's nerves—and I'm afraid I've nerves of my own. We'll find Neal"——

"He'll be in soon," said Pat, so soothingly that I loved him for it. "The boy's been under a terrible strain. I sent him out this morning on a job only a hero could have been after handing this day. And he's but a lad, half-crazed with grief. It was all too much for him."

Even then I realized that, without actually lying, Pat was glossing over the situation and holding back the full measure of terrible truth from Jeanie and Jim. I had a horror of the moment when we'd have to go into the matter with them. The sordidness of business seemed a thing not to be borne. Mercifully Pat took charge of the situation.

"Now, then, let's be having a mite of dinner," he said in a matter-of-fact voice which did something toward clearing the air. "And then supposing you and I, Alanna, be after going into conference over at your apartment. 'Tis not here we want to be talking."

"I'm staying here tonight," announced Jim grimly. "Suppose you two do go along to our place and think out what's best to do about Neal. Later I'll send Jeanie over in a taxi—or you can call back for her, as seems best to you, Pat."

"I'm going to stay here tonight, Jim"—insisted Jeanie.

"No need of both of us staying," urged Jim.

"Since Phoebe's husband prefers to avoid the agony of being here," said Jeanie coldly. "I think the least her brother and sister can do is to—stay. Don't discuss it with me, Jim. I'm not going to leave tonight."

And finally we agreed to the arrangement, though Pat told me on the way over to my apartment after supper that he'd call for Jeanie, and if she insisted on staying he also would remain. We didn't discuss anything of greater moment than this until we reached the seclusion of my living room. Then Pat fairly catapulted into the matter we'd both been trying to force into the back of our minds.

"See here, Alanna," he said abruptly. "Have you a single idea where that young brother of yours might be hiding?"

"Why should he hide?" I asked.

"Oh—from his grief—from the things that have to be gone through these days—from anything," answered Pat largely, waving his hand to cover the situation.

"I'm numb," I replied slowly. "I can scarcely think. I hardly know how to go on. What must Neal's condition be? Isn't it time to call up the hospitals—or some authority?"

The Cornerstone

"I've done all that," Pat announced. "Neal's just—gone. I hate to tell you this, Alanna. I hate to worry you. But Neal's gone. What he did with the money I don't know. 'Tis safe, no doubt, but 'tis doing us no good now. I'm not worrying over that, but the option is after giving me plenty of concern"——

"I know," I broke in.

"No, Alanna, you can't be knowing," Pat interrupted, sadly. "That option is the cornerstone to a deal that has a million dollars in it and all our credit. I was after bankin' on Neal when once he had the option in his hand.

ANTS AND BRAINS

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

Famous Astronomer and Writer Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

IT is delightful to see ourselves mirrored in such little creatures as the ants. Perhaps you do not believe that the ants are a mirror of humanity. I do not myself wish to push the analogy too far; but, however, please listen to this story:

Close to the wall of my house lives a colony of black ants. The longest of them measure about three-eighths of an inch. They are forever busy. Between their home among the violets, barberries and arbor vitaes next to the wall, and the gravel drive outside, runs a rather broad, concrete gutter, its flat bottom sloping inward toward the house, the inner side being edged with a vertical rim four inches high. Of course, when rain runs in the gutter it is deepest on this side. The ants have a great deal of traffic with the green grassy world beyond the gravel drive, and they are continually crossing the gutter to get to and from it. One day lately a Spring shower came on suddenly and set a rivulet running in the gutter. When the shower was over, but while the wet roofs were still sending down water to the gutter, I went out to see how the plants under the wall had been brightened by the rain.

Big Commotion

Immediately my attention was drawn to a commotion among the ants. A scattered row of them lined the outer side of the concrete gutter. They were running up and down its sloping surface and endeavoring to cross the rivulet of water, about an inch broad and hardly more than ⅛th of an inch deep, on its inner shore next to the vertical rim. They had been caught by the storm while foraging on the other side of the drive and were trying to get home when this unexpected flood cut off their progress. Some of them were carrying booty, which, with an ant's obstinacy, they refused to let go of, flood or no flood, sink or swim!

After a while the roofs almost ceased to drip, the flood was cut off at its source and the little rivulet became narrower and shallower. Presently I saw an ant climbing the steep concrete wall on the inside of the stream. I had not seen how he got across but after a little while there was another one over, and then another. Squatting down and looking more closely, I saw a pebble, hardly larger than a grain of sand, lodged on the inner bank, and in a moment an ant was using it to get across. Whether they individually found it by accident, or got the news of it in some way, at any rate many ants were taking advantage of this providential half-bridge. Others got across as the stream weakened by employing the rush tactics. If they had understood the law of inertia they could not have managed it better.

Watching Ants

I had twenty minutes of unalloyed pleasure in watching the ants meet and contend with an emergency that would occupy a page in their colonial history if they had any annalists to write down the story. Was my time wasted? I think not. These little creatures are our contemporaries, and it would be both interesting and edifying to know their thoughts—if they have any—about our common world.

"Sensational novels have not been lacking among the more than twenty volumes of fiction that Mrs. Atherton has given to her multitude of readers. We venture to assert that BLACK OXEN is the most sensational of the lot. The theme is not new in fiction, but you may be sure that Mrs. Atherton handles it as it was never handled before by any writer. It is a theme forever new and forever near to the heart of woman. I can well believe that no novel on the Spring list of any publisher will occasion as wide discussion." Boston Herald.

"Gertrude Atherton's genius is not essentially self-critical, nevertheless, it is indubitably genius, genius of a higher quality than that possessed by the artist who struggles with words and phrases to achieve his ideal of perfection.

BLACK OXEN may be considered her most brilliant book up to date—once begun it doesn't permit itself to be dropped until finished. It will more firmly seat its author in the unique place she now occupies in our literature."—Carl Van Vechten in N. Y. Nation.

A thunder storm puts out the lights and the guests go into the water without clothes. Dee modestly hesitates on the balcony and then—the lights came on, revealing her in a blinding glare. One of the bathers is saved from drowning by Cary Scott. Pat and Cary Scott become interested in each other. Pat returns from school and declares she is "out for trouble" this time. Scott and Pat confess their love and Scott, whose wife is living, says good-by to her. Pat pretends to Dr. Osterhout that she is about to have a baby. He asks her to marry him. Then she admits she has tricked him and that it is Dee who wants his aid. Cary Scott comes back and Pat succumbs to him. Dee's husband is badly hurt. She refuses to elope with Wollaston. Pat confesses to Dee her relations with Cary.

NOW GO ON WITH THIS ENTHRALLING STORY.

"POSE of youth," opined Bobs.

Herein he was wrong. Pat really was bored, though she would not admit to herself the reason, deep and effective in the background of her wilful soul. Life was flat, stale, tasteless. Men were either unenterprising guineapigs or bellowing rhinoceroses. Women were cats. She loathed the tame and monotonous world. It was boredom combined with a provocative accidental discovery that led to her reckless adventure of the Washington Heights flat and Edna Carroll.

In an earlier age the Fentriss family would have referred to Edna Carroll with hushed voices, if at all, as "that woman." In this enlightened and tolerant time she was humorously characterized by the three girls as Ralph's "flossie." Little was known of her. She lived somewhere outside the social pale and Fentriss' liason with her had endured for many years. Constance was sure that she was of the flamboyant, roystering chorus-girl type. Dee inclined to the soft and babyish siren. Pat speculated rangingly, and had more than once endeavored to pump Osterhout, with notable lack of success. From some unlocatable purlieu of gossip had issued the rumor that Ralph Fentriss was going to marry her, perhaps had already done so secretly. Constance was outraged. Dee was cynicaly amused, but skeptical. Pat was hotly excited.

Entering the city by one of the upper ferries one day in search of a dressmaker's assistant, recreant in the matter of a dinner gown, the youngest daughter was startled to see her father's car drawn up opposite a pleasant looking apartment house on a quiet side street. At three-thirty in the afternoon! The truth leapt to her mind. Profusely blooming flowers made beautiful the third floor window ledge; there, Pat decided, was the nest of the bird. Fearing that her father might emerge and find her, she hastened away.

Pat takes a trip to New York

On the following morning, full of delightful tremors and keen anticipations—for this would be something, indeed, to tell the girls—she returned and pressed the third button in the entry. The light click of the release almost sent her scuttling out, but she gathered her resolution, composed a demure face for herself, and mounted the stairs.

In the top hallway stood a slim, tailor-made woman with glasses pushed up on her forehead. Pat at once made up her mind that she was attractive in an alert, bird-like way.

"Whom are you looking for?" asked the woman pleasantly.

Pat liked her voice. "Does Mrs. Fentriss live here?"

"Who?" said the woman in a tone which made Pat regret that she had chosen that particular form of opening.

Pat faltered out the inquiry again, not knowing what else to do. The other's brown and dancing eyes grew formidably cold.

"Why do you ask for Mrs. Fentriss?"

"I thought this was where she lived."

"There is no Mrs. Fentriss here."

"Perhaps I've got the wrong apartment."

"No. I think you have the right one. Who are you?"

Entire frankness appeared to the intruder the method of sense and safety. "I'm Pat. Patricia Fentriss."

"I thought so. By what right do you come here?" Two tiny spots of reddish flame shone in the wine-dark eyes. Pat decided that she was very attractive.

"Please don't be angry with me."

"You're hardly here as an emissary of the family, I suppose."

"No. I—I just came."

"In that case hadn't you better just go again?"

"If you tell me to," said Pat, downcast and humble.

The other hesitated. "I can't conceive what you mean by this visit," she said with severity, into which, however, had crept a mitigating quality. "Was it just vulgar curiosity?"

Pat Nodded

Pat nodded so vigorously that her hair flicked forward about her face like wind-whipped silk ribbons.

"You're frank, at any rate. I like that." Abruptly she stepped back. "As you're here come in."

Pat obeyed. "You're awfully good to let me."

"Am I? That remains to be seen." She led the way to an airy, daintily furnished front room a conspicuous feature of which was a big arm chair with a drawing board across the arms.

"What's that?" asked Pat with lively curiosity.

"My work."

"Oh! Are you an artist?"

"Of a sort. I make fashion drawings."

"How diverting!" Pat was recovering herself. "Can't you go on working while we talk?"

"Are we going to talk?" The corners of the firm mouth crinkled up, a dimple affirmed its existence, the brown eyes twinkled, and Pat incontinently and most improperly fell in love with her hostess.

"I think you're too delightful!"

"I can be quite otherwise, on occasion—to impertinent people."

"Don't scare me again," begged Pat. "I won't be impertinent. Though I want to be, terribly."

"As that is what you came for, perhaps you'd better be. Why did you ask for Mrs. Fentriss?"

"Isn't that what—what you're called?"

"Certainly not."

An inspiration struck Pat. "We heard that you'd married Dad."

The hostess replaced her glasses, seated herself, and began to ink in a sketch. "Did you?"

"Is it true?"

"No. We are not married."

So good, that line. A chilling thought followed. "He isn't likely to be coming here, is he?"

"Why? Are you afraid of being caught?"

"I can't think of anything more [illegible]."

"Don't be alarmed. He couldn't get in if he did come."

Pat searched her mind for movie evidence. "Hasn't he got a key?"

"No. Why not be honest and ask directly what's in your mind?"

"I—I don't know how," confessed the visitor.

"For a singularly forward young person you don't get on very fast. How old are you?"

"Nineteen. But I know everything about—about everything."

"If you don't it isn't for lack of enterprise," was the grim reply. "And what you don't know, you suspect. In this case your suspicions are quite correct. But it doesn't follow that Ralph—that your father comes and goes at will here in my place." There was the slightest emphasis on the possessive.

"Oh! I thought they—they always had—had a key and—and——"

Paid the Rent

"And paid the rent and filled the place with luxury and orchids, cigarettes and champagne. You've been reading cheap novels. The rotten-minded little fiction writers don't know everything. They don't know anything about women."

Pat leaned forward. "Are you going to marry Dad?"

The artist's face hardened. "You were sent here to find that out. Well, then, I am."

"I'm glad," said Pat simply and sincerely.

The older woman took off her glasses, rose, walked across to the lounge where Pat was seated and set her delicate hands on the girl's shoulders, staring into her face with an inscrutable expression. "Why do you say that?"

"Because it's true. I'm crazy about you—already." The other sat down [illegible]. "What kind of a person are you?"

"An honest one."

"Then I'll be too. I'm not going to marry Ralph. I can't. I've got a husband. He's no good. I haven't lived with him for years. I had a devil of a life. I was going to kill myself when I met Ralph."

"Were you so poor?" asked Pat sympathetically.

"Poor? Do you think it was a question of money with me that took me to Ralph?" retorted the other with slow anger.

"No. I don't know why I said that. But you're so young."

"So is he," was the defiant reply. "He's eternally young. That's what I love in him. I loved him the first time I ever saw him and I've never stopped. But if you've come here looking for a common kept-woman——"

"I haven't. Oh, I haven't," broke in Pat, squirming.

Except Her Name

"Anyway, you know all about me now. All except my name, Edna Carroll. What are you going to tell your family?"

"Not a word."

"Aren't you? You're a strange little witch."

"Do you like me a little?" asked Pat, slant-eyed and demure.

"Yes, I do. You're very like Ralph in some ways."

"Then may I come again?"

"No."

"Why not?"

"I should have thought you might understand without my drawing you a diagram."

"Conventional stuff!" scoffed the girl. "How do you get that way? I'm coming anyway—[illegible]."

Edna Carroll laughed uncertainly. "I'm insane to let you. But I'd love to have you. What would your father think?"

"He's not going to think at all. We won't give him the chance. Will you ask me to your parties?"

"How do you know I give parties?"

"You're the kind that always draws people around them. The [illegible]," added the shrewd Pat. "There's a violin and a [illegible] on the piano. I don't suppose you play them all. And I'm mad about music."

"Inheritance," murmured Edna softly. She let one darkling glance rest on the piano bench where Ralph Fentriss had so often sat to make his [illegible]. "Very well. I'll ask you soon."

She was as good as her word. It was there that Pat met Leo Stenak.

YOUR BEAUTY

A NEW SERIES OF PRACTICAL VALUE

By Maria Jeritza

The Famous Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company and One of the Most Beautiful Women in the World.

A GOOD, strong back is the rule rather than the exception in these days of sturdy exercise, constructive thought, fresh air and loose, comfortable clothing. Yet not so many generations ago as to be entirely beyond remembrance of the "oldest inhabitant," a strong back was exceptional for a woman, while to "enjoy delicate health" was considered—well, rather distinctively feminine and charming.

Let us be grateful that we live in an age of common sense. Today women delight in healthful thinking and healthy bodies as the foundation of beauty and charm. And both men and women are infinitely the gainers by this change of sentiment.

As to just how much power cheerful good will has over the body, not all of us agree. But even the most conservative doctor will tell you that the battle is half won when a patient can be kept happy and unafraid.

So let us not fail to be hopeful and jolly, for thereby we shall gain physically as well as mentally, and will help others to do the same. Even your back will be straighter and more graceful when your mind is full of courage and of joy.

Here is an exercise that will limber up not only all the muscles of your neck, but just about all the muscles you possess.

Lie flat on your back on the floor, your arms by your sides. Now lift your legs, one over each shoulder until they reach the floor behind your head. This will not be easy at first. When you can do it easily you may be sure you are in fine physical condition.

The second part of the exercise consists in balancing your legs as you bring them back over your shoulders until they are straight over your head. In this position, bend and unbend your knees ten times.

This is one of my favorite exercises and I have learned to do it easily and enjoy doing it. Personally, I am not troubled by over weight, but if reducing happens to be one of your hobbies you may like to know that the exercise is listed by several authorities on reducing.

"My prediction is that this novel will interest more women than any novel since Vance Thompson's "Eat and Grow Thin." It is more than likely that its more sensational theme will overshadow its higher merits as an entertaining and well planned novel containing a clever and delicious expose of the feminine mind. I can but suggest that if you are a male and want a jolt for your little complacencies and vanities, read BLACK OXEN. I do not need to suggest that women read it. They will soon enough if they find out that it has to do with the rejuvenization of youth and beauty." Burton Rascoe—N. Y. Tribune

A ductless gland operation, not the monkey gland operation of comic fame, is the real secret of restored youth and beauty as revealed by Gertrude Atherton in the greatest book of the day, Black Oxen, which starts in Monday's American.

WHO SAID IT AND WHERE

"There's nought no doubt, as much the spirit calms as rum and true religion."

This was the opinion of Lord Byron in "Don Juan."

"Sleep sets the soul at liberty."

Like a statement of a modern psychoanalyst read these words from Thomas Bancroft poem "Sleep," written about 1596.

"It is not for our good in ease to rest;
Man like to Cassia when bruised is best."

It is only by trials that man's best qualities are brought out, wrote Samuel Sheppard in "Afflictions Beneficial."

"Corporations have no soul."

Declared the eminent English jurist, Sir Edward Coke, (1552-1633) in his "Institutes."

"Truth is the highest thing man may keep."

This line is from the "Canterbury Tales" by Chaucer.

GOOD DAY TO INVEST

ACCORDING to this day's stellar cotion, business matters should thrive under the beneficent sway of the Jupiter and Mars intervention. Under this rulership large projects should be essayed with the prospect of financial success. In other directions, however, there may be peculiar or intriguing situations, with the possibility of accident or other untoward events. And under an afflicted phase of Venus, there may be complications in domestic, social or affectional affairs.

Tomorrow beware of entering into love affairs. The stars will tell you why.

"Mrs. Atherton is frank in revelations of the experiences of the 'lady of mystery.' BLACK OXEN presents an interesting study of feminine moods and wiles. Mrs. Atherton is a novelist of experience and her novels have rare vitality." Philadelphia Record

FOXY GRANDPA STORY

STUFFED HIS CAMEL

"I DON'T see why we can't start on our trip today," Bobby said one morning in Egypt.

"We can't go until our guide says we can, Bobby," I replied.

"Well, Foxy grandpa, you hired that guide and I don't see why he doesn't do what you tell him to," he added rather disgustedly.

"Oh, Bobby, it isn't like you to be so grouchy. Cheer up! We'll be off before you know it."

Our Arab guide couldn't speak very good English and it was hard for me to understand him. All the satisfaction I could get out of him was:

"We go when camel all right."

A few days passed—but we didn't start. Finally one morning Bobby ran in and said:

"Foxy Grandpa, that guide doesn't want to go on the trip."

"What do you mean, Bobby?" I asked.

"Well, he just doesn't."

"You're wrong, my boy. He's made all the arrangements. All the supplies are bought and packed."

"Well, then, why doesn't he let us start?"

"I asked him this morning and he said: 'In few days. When camel was all right.'"

"That's all nonsense, Foxy Grandpa!" Bobby exclaimed. "There's not a thing in the world the matter with that old camel. You ought to see what he eats! If he were sick he couldn't eat the way he does. He eats enough for half a dozen camels and he's getting fatter every day. Why, if that lump on the old thing's back gets much fatter he won't be able to waddle."

I had noticed that the Arab had been asking me for extra money for food for his camel. I thought he was a very expensive camel.

"Why, Foxy Grandpa! It's terrible the way that Arab is stuffing that camel. He'll burst and if he is sick now, he surely will be worse. He's bound to have indigestion from overloading his stomach," he added with a look of wisdom.

As we were discussing the camel's health, my guide came up to me and bowed low. Then with great dignity he said:

"Camel fine and fat. We start tomorrow."

Then the guide explained that he couldn't start out on a trip unless the hump on the camel's back was good and fat, because the camel not only carried his own water in his stomach, but also carried some of his own food in his hump. He lived on that fat in the desert.

We had a wonderful trip and when we got home the camel had lost his fat hump and had to grow another before his next trip.

"is the finest of a long line of brilliant achievements. It will create a new place for Mrs. Atherton and will be discussed everywhere. BLACK OXEN is by far her greatest story, and to me at least, the most absorbing novel by anyone which I have read in a couple of years." Charles Hanson Towne—Bookman

To Easily Overcome Tan, Freckles, Redness

Use Ordinary Mercolized Wax

If your skin is unduly reddened, tanned or freckled, just dab a little pure Mercolized Wax on the face and allow it to remain over night. When you wash off the wax in the morning, fine, flaky, almost invisible particles of cuticle come with it. Repeating this daily, the entire outer skin is absorbed, but so gradually and gently there's not the slightest hurt or inconvenience. Even the stubbornest freckles are affected. The underlying skin which forms the new complexion is so clear, fresh and youthful-looking you'll marvel at the transformation. It's the only thing known to actually discard an aged, faded, muddy or blotchy complexion. One ounce of Mercolized Wax, procurable at any drug store, is sufficient in most cases.

"In BLACK OXEN Mrs. Atherton has produced an absorbing romance of imaginative feminine psychology. Quite the finest thing she has done since 'The Conqueror'. It is a story with the true quality of romance brilliantly realized. Unique in the originality of its conception. The central theme is one that comes but once in a generation. Instinctively one returns to the Peau de Chagin of Balzac for a story of such potential mystery, fanciful symbolism and startling originality."

MELODY

PIANO in the parlor, Elsie's

Ella's playing records in her room;
Willie's in his lair, grabbing
noises from the air;
Their habitat is no place for a Gloom.

Bill is in the attic with his saxophone,
Elsa's trying out her voice
once more,
Baby does her bit with a fearful
squalling fit;
The neighbors all around are getting sore.

Charlie's in the kitchen, fiddling
like mad;
Eddie's started beating on his drum;
When they're going good, we'll have it understood,
Their domicile is surely hum

DON'T—

Tell your daughter how you used to fool your pa and ma in your courting days.

Let your wife catch you carrying bundles for the good looking woman next door.

Get caught darning socks in the front window when the fashionable Mrs. Jinks goes by.

Give the coal man a piece of your mind for the shabby way he treated you last Winter. There'll be more Winters.

Count your roll in the presence of the chap who's always borrowing money to play the races.

Make sarcastic remarks to the barber who is about to cut your hair.

Watch the hosiery instead of the autos when you cross the street.

WHEN IN LOVE

With a girl who likes to ride in taxicabs, buy a flivver and save money.

With a girl who is taller than you are, tell her not to wear high heels.

With a girl who has been to a finishing school, never ask her if she has finished talking.

With a girl who smokes, leave your cigarettes at home before calling.

With a widow, don't propose to her unless you mean it.

With a minister's wife, go to some other church.

With a bow-legged girl, don't take her to a bathing beach.

With a cross-eyed girl, be sure that she has her back turned before smiling at some other dame.

Twixt the chickens and the fishermen the worm has a tough time of it these days.

The rippling rill and the dripping still have both been responsible for song.

How many bootleggers seek departed spirits?

The two-gun man cut notches in his pistol butt to keep count of his victims. The bootlegger needs an adding machine.

There's too much favoritism in this country. Only the lawyers are admitted to the bar.

Logical and with a careful eye to reality, the story never loses the keen interest which it possesses from the very start."

"The conflict of a woman's soul and its influence upon two lovers of diametrically opposed characters, make an absorbing story. There are some superb scenes with moving, dramatic situations, and the amazing gift for color and action with which Mrs. Atherton is endowed, make this a story of intense vitality and magnificent literary attainment."
—Buffalo Courier.

"BLACK OXEN is a drama which for psychological penetration and insight into the deeper recesses of woman's nature has rarely, if ever, been equalled in fiction."
Honolulu Star-Bulletin.

"In BLACK OXEN Mrs. Atherton has produced an absorbing romance of imaginative feminine psychology. Quite the finest thing she has done since 'The Conqueror.' It is a story with the true quality of romance brilliantly realized. Unique in the originality of its conception. The central theme is one that comes but once in a generation. Instinctive one returns to the Peau de Chagrin of Balzac for a story of such potential mystery, fanciful symbolism and startling originality." Owen Johnson, N. Y. Herald

Lady Fans Have the Call at Wigwam Today

CHANCE FOR BRAVES TO SHOW OFF

By NICK FLATLEY.

The Braves may not do [illegible] fan, but they figure to have [illegible] gathering of the lesser sex at [illegible] ball orchard this afternoon. It was Ladies' Day at the Wigwam and all the fair flappers, wrens, chasers, storms and strifes, mothers, sisters, aunts and daughters were invited to the [illegible].

Dana F. Fillingim

No man can understand the female mind, according to [illegible] other[illegible] who seem to have investigated. There's no reason why anybody should go up to watch the Braves these days [illegible] plenty of funnies were [illegible] to attend.

Looked like a great [illegible] baseball [illegible] had a day of [illegible] and years [illegible] Ladies' Day in the [illegible] was before the [illegible] species of fan graced the ball yards.

When business got [illegible] the big hearted magnates [illegible] the free [illegible]. President Matty [illegible] decided that the woman's touch [illegible] help the Home of Big Things. A [illegible] how [illegible] issued a general invitation and if the affair is a success it's likely to be made a weekly fixture.

ESCORTS WILL HAVE GOOD TIMES EXPLAINING THE GAME

Anybody can have a good time trying to describe how the Braves play the game to the [illegible] of his heart or somebody else's heart as the case may be. Women as a class don't understand baseball, so they will all feel right at home. Nobody has been able to understand how the Tribe can sink so rapidly and consistently.

A flock of frills will also be a sort of reward to the chronic fans, who have been gradually sinking into morbid silence as daily defeat has rolled across the screen. The boys have a little fun watching the ushers pursue vagrant baseballs through the stands, but getting a real eyeful of femininity should furnish a really good time.

The Pittsburgh Pirates are a very gentlemanly ball club, so the [illegible] [illegible] for the turn back to [illegible].

BRAVES MAY SPRUCE UP AND GET OUT OF HABIT.

With the girls all looking on, the Braves may spruce up a bit and get out of the habit of losing every game played except half of the regular Saturday double header.

If such a wonder should happen, President Matty is likely to make every day Ladies' Day. And THAT wouldn't be a bad idea at all with the club hopelessly out of the race.

FIRPO MAKES A BIG HIT AT WIGWAM

[illegible] of athletic lovers [illegible] Firpo tonight and [illegible]. It appears [illegible] is to get a [illegible] who knocked [illegible] Willard and [illegible] the most [illegible] challengers. [illegible] in Boston [illegible]. The trip [illegible] was brought [illegible] Braves Field [illegible] startled the [illegible] wonderful [illegible] with one of [illegible].

REALIZE HOW HE COULD BATTER THEM TO DEFEAT.

One glance at Firpo's powerful body and you realized why he was able to batter Bill Brennan, Jack McAuliffe and Jess Willard to submission.

Standing more than six feet [illegible] pounds, Firpo presents a form [illegible] tremendous [illegible] deltoids and [illegible] development. This is where he gets the great power which enables him to knock out his opponents.

Firpo relies almost entirely upon [illegible] fame [illegible] punch [illegible] to batter [illegible] his sparring partners.

NCH FLASHES OUT RAIGHT AND WITH SPEED

[illegible]

EADY TO BATTLE CHAMPION NOW

[illegible] a few words [illegible] the champion [illegible] Argentine man [illegible] his interpreter [illegible] should I wait for another [illegible] before meeting Dempsey?" [illegible] the man with the sad eyes [illegible] have knocked out every man I [illegible] I have come to [illegible] I am prepared to land [illegible] on Dempsey's jaw.

[illegible] champion has been lying [illegible] for four years and is not as [illegible] a fighter as when he won the [illegible] from Willard. He did not show [illegible] good advantage against Tom [illegible] at Shelby. If I had been in [illegible] place at Shelby I would [illegible] knocked out Dempsey."

[illegible] Rickard apparently figures Firpo is ready to meet Dempsey [illegible] year. Negotiations for the match [illegible] been virtually completed.

MR. GALLAGHER and MR. SHEAN

EACH week the Boston American presents an original Gallagher & Shean drawing to the person who sends in the best Gallagher & Shean lyric. From among the batch which came in today the folowing is selected for publication:

By J. Kehoe, Jr., No. 9 Lewis street, Providence, R. I.:

Oh. Mr. Gallagher, Oh, Mr. Gallagher!
Last night I could barely sleep a wink.

This morn I was so weak,
I couldn't see or speak,
I certainly feel muchly on the blink.

Oh, Mr. Shean, Oh, Mr. Shean!
Your trouble can most readily be seen.

It is not the heat, my lad,
That makes you feel so bad—

SUN-STROKE, MR. GALLAGHER?
MOONSHINE, MR. SHEAN!

Try your hand at it. Address your lyrics to Gallagher & Shean, care of the Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass.

SOME THINK

That ping pong is a Chinese port.

That jugglers are employed to balance checkbooks.

That a linen shower is when the clothesline breaks.

That a union suit is a pair of overalls.

That solitaire is only played by bachelors.

That a humorist is funny to his wife.

That a hack writer is a taxicab company clerk.

That the boys at the foot of the class grow up to be shoe salesmen.

That a detective can't shadow

That trained seals are used to work for manufacturers of note paper.

That only Chinese pigs wear pigtails.

That a ham actor eats meat on Friday.

THEN AND NOW

Diogenes searches for an honest man, 380 B. C. Finally discovers one in cemetery, fifty years later.

The Sultan tries out the first Turkish towel, 1486. Says it makes his back itch.

Balboa discovers the Pacific, 1513. Wonders why the water is so deep.

Samuel de Champlain explores the coast of New England, 1605, but is unable to find anyone who does not vote the Republican ticket.

Dr. Harvey cuts himself while shaving for church, 1628, discovering the circulation of the blood.

That chickens hatch on eggplants.

That the game of cricket is played on the hearth.

Medbury Says—

By John P. Medbury

HUNDREDS of girls claim they're still single because they can't find the right kind of husband. There are plenty of right kind of husbands, but the trouble is somebody else has found them first.

BUT these girls should be patient and wait until some wife gets through with one of them.

NO matter how good a husband may be, his wife is bound to get sick of him sooner or later.

THE more perfect a man is, the quicker his wife wants to change him for a later model.

ONE dame said it was hard to find a man to marry. It's a whole lot harder to find him after you get married.

THE only place to put him so you'll know where to find him is in the cemetery.

AND one girl didn't even trust her poor husband in the cemetery. She had to go out there every once in a while to see if he was still there.

OF course every husband has some faults. It's almost impossible to get one made to your order.

THE best way to do is to get him when he's five or six years old and bring him up to suit yourself.

BUT then just as you get him trained the way you want him, some other dame will come along and grab him.

YOU have no protection either. It doesn't do you a bit of good to have him patented.

NOBODY ever heard of a woman having her husband copyrighted.

HE may be your own idea, but that isn't going to prevent somebody else from stealing him.

IF he wants to run away there's nothing to stop him. It's against the law to tie him up in the backyard.

YOU may have married him for a pet, but that's no reason you can keep him in a dog house.

THERE'S no sense in a lot of girls remaining single with so many married men running around.

THE best way to do is to stand out in front of the house and grab one as he goes by.

OF course there are a lot of single men at large, too. They may have been married at one time, but that's probably why they're single now.

ONCE OVERS

DO NOT EVER LEAVE YOUR HOME "IN A HUFF"

So you left your home "in a huff" this morning.

Something angered you, and in a hasty, unthinking way, you said mean, hard things.

During the day you have thought of it many times and wondered why you were so ugly.

You are ashamed of your outburst—your conscience accuses.

You have resolved to exercise more control next time your angry passions try to assert themselves.

But in a short time you will forget your good resolution and there will be a repetition of your morning outburst.

Now, say, did one of these spells ever do you any good?

Is it right for you to leave your family in the morning harboring ill-feeling toward any member of it?

No matter how careful you are or how safe your line of work, you may not return as safe and sound as when you left home.

Something might happen to some member of your family within a few short hours, while you are absent.

Is it not unmanly to depart from home in anger and leave a wound which may not heal all day?

"In the next few months, perhaps weeks, BLACK OXEN will become one of the best selling books in Chicago and by the middle of Spring any woman who has not read it will find herself hopelessly out of the talk of the town, for it has many elements of popularity—it is as timely as today's newspaper. It has both mystery and suspense and a love story. It is more frank that anything F. Scott Fitzgerald or Robert Herrick ever attempted, and yet entirely respectable, and it marks the high point of achievement for Mrs. Atherton as a novelist."

Steels Weak and Market Irregular in New York with Price Range Small

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

If you won't learn from others, you will never learn much.

The wideawake man seeks to profit from the experiences of others and to keep in touch with the views of others.

The recent discussion of the feasibility and advisability of granting vacation with pay to wage-earners not of the collar-and-cuff variety has stirred up a lot of thinking, and the probability is that there will be some actual results.

Perhaps it will help matters along if we consider today two of the letters inspired, one from a company that has found the plan satisfactory, the other from a worker who received no vacation from one year's end to the other.

From the Henshaw Motor Company, Boston, among the oldest and largest motor car dealers in New England, comes this interesting account of their experience with paid vacations for wage-earners:

"Five years ago the Henshaw Motor Company of Boston broke away from precedent and decided that mechanics, wage-earners and piece-workers would benefit by and were entitled to vacations just as much as executives or white-cuff men. It has always been the attitude of this company's officials that the mechanical service departments of this business are made up of the same kind of human beings as compose the other divisions. Both from a personal and from a family standpoint, the men who work with their hands are equally appreciative of equitable treatment in this respect.

"Our adoption of this rather radical policy has resulted in greater activity and greater enthusiasm because of improved physical and mental health among our wage-workers. We find profitable results in a lowered labor turnover and in the development of better men. Our sources of labor supply are broadened by the advertising that follows liberalized policies.

Of course, we do not give vacations with pay indiscriminately or unearned. Only the employe whose record is clean and continuous is entitled to this bonus. If given unearned it would not be appreciated, whereas, under our present system, it is a valued reward, a pleasant stimulus to intelligent effort and a recognition of effort and achievement.

"Every wage-working employe is eligible to vacation allowance, five days being given to those who have been a year on the payroll and an additional day for each year up to ten.

"Not only are paid vacations arranged, but we have recently adopted a working schedule that permits the ambitious shopman to measure his earnings in accordance with his ability. Reasonable working hours have always been a part of our policy.

"Vacations with pay for wage-workers and piece-workers have worked out well with us, benefiting:

"First—The employe.
"Second—His family.
"Third—The customer.
"Fourth—The factory.
"Fifth—The firm itself."

Gaze on that picture, and on this from a railway telegrapher located in the West:

"I am a daily reader of your column and wish to congratulate you on your timely article on a vacation and a day's rest in each week. I am employed as a telegraph operator for one of the large western railroads, and in that capacity for the last twenty-five years have labored every day in the week, month and year without annual vacation at the most monotonous nervewracking work.

"The Labor Board since the rails were handed back to their owners, has handed down decision after decision that has been taking more and more away from our tables, clothes, etc. I will say that for one in my railroad work we did receive wages, during government control, that we could live on like other people but those days are gone, with $37.50 reduction in pay per month.

"It sure is enough to drive one to distraction to find that they have worked all their life at a position that refused to pay them an American standard of living, this after never missing a day in the year. It seems to me if our government says our roads should earn 5.75 per cent. on their watered stock valuation, that one that has made this his life's work should have a guarantee. Are dollars valued more in [illegible] than moneyed Americans [illegible] the future lives of any [illegible] that we are trying to bring up [illegible] ful citizens? The industrial and economic conditions in this country surely need some one [illegible] that will not be all self, and if we only had the direct primary instead of Wall street domination of both parties, Henry Ford would sweep the country and give justice to all the people and not five per cent. as at present.

"Think of the heads of families that are working in this country trying to support a family on $125 per month and less. I will say that the big four brotherhoods in the transportation department and all skilled mechanics in the building trades are receiving large wages, but this does not make prosperity for the rest of us, who are not so strongly organized and cannot demand a percentage over our existence for a rainy day.

"I want to thank you for your favorable article, and hope that some of the so-called 'big men' heading our industries and railroads will absorb it. Our present economic and industrial relations need the teachings of our Lord: 'Love Thy Neighbor as Thy Self.'"

* * *

The sooner every employer in America learns that it is wrong to work men 365 days a year, the more solid, prosperous and contented a nation will we become.

TRADING ACTIVE WITH CRUCIBLE OFF POINT

Steels were weak as a group and the market irregular after a fairly strong start in New York today. Money opened at 5 per cent. The range of prices was small. Trading was active.

Crucible Steel was off a point at 65¾. U. S. Steel was fractionally lower at the opening, but a number of leading issues bettered their Thursday closing.

There was a rally in the early afternoon.

Foundation Company set another new 1923 high, then was sold off on profit-taking. This company has been further boosted on reports of numerous foreign contracts for construction.

There were point or better gains at the day's best in Hamilton Oil, American Car & Foundry, General Asphalt, Lehigh Valley, Pere Marquette, Pan-American "B," Reading and Stromberg.

Mack Truck and National Enameling were up 2 points or better.

Fisher Body was bid 145, which would represent a setback of 12½ points had a transaction taken place. Corn Products was off over a point.

Those who have been preaching the gospel of depression and of the recurrence of hard times akin to the 90s are prone to forget how quickly the bubble of inflation was pricked this year and how solidly all executives and economists are working to flatten the peaks of trade activity. Booms and depressions are being studied with the same zeal as human diseases.

Consequently, the mere cessation of an unhealthy boom leading to grave evils, for instance, in the building industry, is not regarded as ushering in a period of stagnation. High living standards, deferred public improvements and the like are splendid cushions on which to rest an overworked industrial machine.

Curtailment in the oil and the textile industries is very drastic and should promise relief from overproduction before long, though admittedly petroleum conditions are difficult to control so large are existing stocks. Tires and shoes are being cited in some quarters as in fairly large supply.

BETTER CALL FOR SHOE LEATHER

Demand for upper leather on the part of the shoe manufacturing trade increased perceptibly this week. The shoe producers are still operating on a hand-to-mouth basis, but orders are coming from more sources than has been the rule for some time, according to tanners and leather dealers.

Men's shoe manufacturers are buying more grain calf in lighter shades and coincidentally more black. Both the shoe and leather trades are encouraged by the indications that point to lighter shades of tans for men's shoes this Fall.

Light tan shoes, they say, mean more sales in black as well, as men do not like to wear light colored shoes with the darker clothes usually worn for dress up occasions and in the evening.

In leathers for the women's shoe trade black suede is in strong demand, with brown shades also in call.

RAILS ASK LITTLE FOR REFUNDING

Rail companies will ask little money for refunding maturities for the remainder of 1923. According to bankers in close touch with railroad affairs, it will be possible for most of the railroads through their large earnings to take care of the greater part of their maturing obligations without recourse to refunding operations.

Total bonds and notes falling due in the next five months approximate $67,000,000. Of this amount about $16,000,000 mature in August, only $2,700,000 in September and $24,000,000 in December.

It was pointed out, however, that such conditions should not be taken to indicate there will be no new railroad financing. The improvement program launched by some of the companies may make it necessary for them to enter the market for funds later in the year.

MOODY'S SHOWS BEAR SIGNALS ARE FLYING

Moody's Weekly Review of Financial Conditions says:

"There is an old saying, never to sell a dull market; but, on the other hand, no great upward movement in stocks has ever taken place except after rather general liquidation, whereas up to date the liquidation has been confined to the stock market alone.

"Investors are apparently waiting for both industrial and political clues. In the special senatorial election in Minnesota the Harding candidate this time polled only about 42.2 per cent. of the aggregate vote of the two leading parties, against 51.2 per cent. in the gubernatorial election in 1922—although the candidates in both elections were the same men. This success of the Farmer-Labor candidate displays continued growth of radicalism.

"Wheat is now closer to the centre of the stage and the slump is disturbing. Cotton wheat and hogs are the three great cash products of agriculture; and the first is declining, while the other two are down almost to panic prices. Under the present peculiar conditions the government crop report would be "better" if it indicated smaller yields; for what the country needs is agricultural prosperity—the basis of which must be higher prices.

"Standard copper stocks in prewar times showed average dividends of 3.9 cents per pound, and a margin of profit equal to 25 per cent. of the selling price of the metal. Future results are unlikely to do better.

"Fertilizer sales for 1923 should total about 6,550,000 tons, against 5,214,523 in 1921 and 7339239 in 1920. Thus the fertilizer business itself is showing a fair profit."

NEW BEDFORD BOND ISSUE FOR BOSTON

New Bedford has awarded to Estabrook & Co., at 100.39 $100,000 Highway 4½ per cent. bonds, $10,000 Sea Wall, and $60,000 school 4¼ bonds, all dated July 1, and maturing 1924 to 1943 inclusive. Other bidders were: Harris, Forbes & Co., 4½ per cent. bonds, 100.40; Edmund Bros. & Co. 4½ per cent. bonds 100.39; R. L. Day & Co., 4½ per cent. bonds 100.29; Curtis & Sanger, 4½ per cent. Highway and Sea Wall bonds and 4¼ per cent. school bonds, 100.04; Blodget & Co., 4½ per cent. on Highway and Sea Wall and 4¼ per cent. school bonds, 100.01 and Merchants National Bank, New Bedford, 4½ per cent. $100,000 and $10,000 and 4¼ per cent. $60,000 at 100.

QUOTATIONS FALL IN COTTON FUTURES

New York, July 20.—Cotton futures were reactionary today with prices from 5 to 20 lower. Pressure was noticeable in all options, especially in July, due to easier Liverpool cables, poor trade advices and favorable weather reports. July sold at 26.35 off 20. October at 23.75 off 5. December at 23.26 off 10 points, January at 23.03 off 9 and March at 23.04 off 9.

Hotel and Resort Chat

The New Ocean House is rapidly filling up with permanent season guests, the numbers running far ahead of any previous season. It is expected that capacity will be reached within the next ten days. The modified golf course of 1000 yards developed this spring in the rear of the hotel has become extremely popular with resident guests of the hotel. The course offers opportunities for approaching and putting equal to a regulation golf course. All day long the modified nine holes course is crowded with guests of the hotel, the layout being particularly attractive to the beginners as well as the women golfers.

On July 25 from 3:30 to 5, Mrs. E. R. Grabow will be hostess at the Children's party which will be held in the main ballroom. This event is always looked forward to with pleasure by the little ones in the hotel and from the cottage colony along the North Shore.

The second formal ball of the season was held in the main ballroom Saturday evening, July 14, and was attended by a large number of invited guests from the cottage colony as well as the guests of the hotel. Music was furnished by Meyer Davis of Washington, D. C.

PROFILE HOUSE OPENS IN NEW HAMPSHIRE.

With the opening of the Profile House and its affiliated hotels, the Forest Hill at Franconia, and Upland Terrace at Bethlehem, the exclusive cottage colony at Profile began to arrive. All three hotels have been beautifully redecorated and partly remodeled in exceptionally good taste. Mr. Karl P. Abbott, the manager of these houses as well as the well-known Gasparilla Inn at Boca Grand, Florida, in the Winter and Mrs. Abbott have opened their cottage for the Summer.

The past week has seen many arrivals of the old regime as well as new ones at the Profile House and interest in the various activities has begun among the guests. Another week will see the season in full swing, with mountain climbing parties on burroback, golfing, tennis and horseback riding in order.

Prominent among the early arrivals are Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Nickerson of Boston; Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Tibbits and Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Weed, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Crowe of Haverhill, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Scheckley of New Bedford. Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Nutting of Framingham spent the past week end at the Profile. Mr. Nutting is compiling a book on the beauty of New Hampshire.

BRYAN MAY SPEAK AT HAMPTON BEACH.

Mr. George Ashworth, manager of the Ashworth Hotel at Hampton Beach, has invited Mr. William Jennings Bryan to speak during the celebration of the 300th anniversary at Portsmouth, N. H. The Ashworth is a homelike hotel with every accommodation for its guests, and to those who look for rest and recreation and for the invigorating contact with the sea, there are few places more gratifying than Hampton Beach.

MANY GUESTS AT THE POPULAR BALSAMS.

Numerous New England folk are spending the latter days of July in leisurely travel in the White Mountains. In particular they are availing themselves of the opportunity to explore the Dixville Notch region which boasts this season of many fine new roads, one of the most popular being the one leading from Dixville Notch through Grafton Notch to Poland Springs. Showers in the earlier part of the month have kept the hard-packed gravel roads dustless and the vegetation fresh. As to the trails, those up Mounts Long Top, Abenaki, Sanguinari and Gloriette are well defined and of easy ascent, while for the climbing of the steeper and more distant peaks adequate guides may be secured. The younger set are delighted to find an additional tennis court at their disposal this season.

Mr. Walter Vaughan of New York City, who has appeared with Cincinnati and Chicago orchestras as soloist, has been engaged by Mr. Lannin for a series of Sunday night concerts throughout the season.

The more permanent New England group at the Balsams has been augmented the past week by the arrivals of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Wilson, the Misses Mary E. Stone and Ruth C. Cutler and Master Francis Wilson; Mr. and Mrs. John A. Whittemore; Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Woodbury; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. McKay; Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Shorely, Mrs. J. L. Leary and Miss McCarthy of Boston; Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Laphan of New London, Dr. Ernest A. Wells and family of Hartford, Conn., and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Thornley of Providence, R. I.

Within the last week golf has come into its own at the Balsams and many of the golfers among the visitors are playing 36 holes daily. M. B. Stevinson of Washington D. C., has played round in 72 several days and hopes to lower this to 69 before his departure.

POLLY'S PLACE OPENS AT COLEBROOK, N. H.

Polly's Place a "European peasant inn and tea house" at Colebrook, N. H., which opened June 15, under the proprietorship of Miss Amy Lyman Phillips, a well-known resort publicity woman, makes a special bid for honeymooners.

POLAND SPRINGS GOLF DRAWS MANY PLAYERS.

Poland Spring greens have been dotted with players during the past few weeks, and the season promises to be the best known in a long time. In the first place, there are three new greens, numbers eight, thirteen and eighteen, which greatly improve the already fine course. Plans for these were drawn by Dr. W. S. Harban of Washington, and clay models made long before work started—and the result has already more than justified Dr. Harban's interest and foresight. With a little more rain, these new greens will be in excellent condition; and the old ones were never better.

Hiram Ricker, Jr., playing with E. P. Ricker, Jr., Mr. Fenn and Clinton Elliott of New York, recently went around in 73, which is within one of the amateur record on this course. On Tuesday of this week Mr. Elliott went around in 74. More good players than ever, from all indications, will be at Poland Spring this year, and the experts, near experts and enthusiasts of other seasons are returning in large numbers.

Much interest is already shown in the Maine State Open Championship Tournament to be held here September 6-7. This will be a 72-hole medal play and all professional and amateurs in the country are eligible.

OUTING HELD AT SIPPICAN, MARION

The annual outing of the New Bedford Yacht Club was held this season at the Sippican at Marion, Mass., a great number of members sailing down, attracted by the excellent cuisine for which this house is well known. An informal tennis tournament was held in the afternoon and the regular Sippican Orchestra furnished the music for the regular evening dancing. That the Sippican is enjoying its usual splendid patronage is evident by the fact that during the same week about 100 parishioners of St. Mary's Cathedral, Fall River, Mass., held their annual banquet here in connection with their commencement exercises.

EARLY BOOKINGS AT LAFAYETTE INN.

A gratifying number of early bookings are being received at Lafayette Inn at York Beach. This house, which is conducted by the Holland System, offers an ideal location on the ocean front and exceptionally fine sea food.

HOTEL WENTWORTH HAS BEEN RENOVATED.

Mr. B. Caldwell announces that the Hotel Wentworth at No. 10 Kenmore street, Boston, has been purchased by the owner of the Braemore-Kenmore, with which it will be connected. These carefully managed houses are enjoying an ever-increasing popularity.

Pay of Public Servants

Compensation Should Not Be So Low That Only the Rich Can Serve

There is much to be said on both sides of the controversy over the pay of our public servants.

We quite agree with the proposition that the compensation for public service should not be so low that only the rich can serve.

The Governor's statement that a man ought to be willing to give his services for one thousand dollars, when all that is required of him is one day a week, may or may not be sound.

A man's whole time for work is only five and one-half days a week, and by one method of calculation this is equal to an income of $5,500 a year at the rate of a thousand dollars for one day a week. This is a fair income if you consider the average income. It is not particularly high if you consider the average among successful men. After all, the general test of ability must be success.

But $5,500 a year does not represent what it seems to represent. A man cannot take a day a week out of his regular business and deduct only the day's proportion of his regular income.

To take that day from a week in most cases will disjoint a man's business. Even though it would take only one-fifth of his time, it would mean generally a great deal more than a loss of one-fifth of his earning capacity.

Some day we are going to have a state of society in which money awards for public service will not count, and until that time comes, the money awards for public service ought to be adequate.

In the case of the Metropolitan District Commission, one thousand dollars a year may be quite adequate, for the work may not require a day a week, but only such times as are convenient.

Wasting Our Heritage

In Massachusetts the forests of practically a whole county were burned and destroyed last month.

In Maine during this month great forest fires have swept over territory which in Europe would be considered a great domain, large enough for a big nation. The population fled to the water's edge and to the railroads.

Now in Idaho forest fires are raging and already two towns have been destroyed. Thousands of persons are reported homeless and great wealth has been consumed and is being consumed.

No such thing as this could happen in Europe. How long are we going to suffer from such carelessness and lack of foresight?

Nature gives us the greatest gift with which nature could ever endow a people—our vast forests. We have practically dissipated our patrimony, our heritage, and with the loss of trees has come another destructive agency—the floods, because the forests kept back the melting snows in the Spring and prevented floods.

We boast of our American efficiency and progressiveness. We wonder how much of it is efficiency and how much is the inefficient waste of nature's gifts—the dissipation of our capital.

How shall we compare with the people of Europe when we have lived on this continent two thousand years and wasted our heritage for two thousand years?

The Soft Snap a Curse

Mr. "Soft Snap" Remains a Nobody. His Soft Snap Holds Him Down

"Soft snap" is an American expression and a world-wide evil. The man engaged in the work that slang calls a "soft snap" thinks himself fortunate. He is to be pitied.

He is held fast, deprived of advancement by the very thing that he values—his "soft snap."

Many a policeman on hard duty envies the "special assignment man" who sits indoors, does little work, and endures no hardship.

But it is not the special assignment man that will become the head of a force, or, leaving the force in due time with the experience that it gives, make a career on a bigger scale.

The young fireman need not envy his mate assigned to duty in a theatre, with no work harder than watching young ladies come out and sing. It is not in the lobby of a theatre that a fireman develops into a man of success.

Workers in offices, stores, factories, all foolishly envy the man who gets a sufficient salary for insufficient work.

Such men should be PITIED, not envied.

They usually begin as men of superior intelligence. They have the cunning, ability or plausibility to get the "soft snap" that makes hard work unnecessary.

The ability which enabled them to get that easy berth might have given them success, something worth while, in the field of real work and struggle.

Phipps of Pittsburgh, with his fifty or one hundred millions, and his palace in Fifth avenue, did not have a "soft snap." He sold gunpowder in a store, closed the store at night, then walked six miles to keep a set of books for a blacksmith, and walked six miles back. No "soft snap" there. And lucky for Phipps that there was none.

Abraham Lincoln, before he began his real work, applied for a position in one of the Washington departments. It was not a position hard to fill. It would have paid him a few thousand dollars a year, and he might have kept it all his life.

What might have happened to the United States, and what to Abraham Lincoln, if he had got that "soft snap"? But he failed to get it in spite of his efforts. He was thrown back into the world of hard fighting, and we know what happened. Lucky for all of us that Lincoln failed to get the "soft snap."

Why do you read ninety times out of a hundred that the man who achieved great success or rendered great service to the human race began and for many years lived in hardship?

Northcliffe did his work through fearless criticism, Lloyd George by marvellous constructive work.

Let others seek the "soft snap." YOU look for work to develop what is in you.

DID INDIANS PRACTICE SURGERY?

NORWALK, Ct., July 20.—Did the Indians of colony days in Connecticut know the art of surgery?

The question was raised here when contractors building a boulevard to Calfpasture Park, on Long Island Sound, came across an Indian burying ground and uncovered scores of skeletons, the bones of one of which were apparently wired. Records indicate the burying ground dates back more than two centuries. Experts will be asked to look over the remains.

Very Unwise

Editor, Boston American:

I think it was very unwise of Mrs. Hague to go out with this Paine: she should have insisted on her mother going with her. But that is no excuse for his taking advantage of her. I admire Lieut. Hague. He certainly was justified in giving the pastor a thrashing. I admire Mrs. Hague for confiding in her husband.

Using Gold Reserve

Editor Boston American:

Why does the United States hoard gold? What good is it? Why not spend our great reserve of gold, or much of it, on schools, more green spots in the cities for the kids, etc.? Give the kids baseball bats and fishin' poles, and they won't have time for street corners and pool parlors.

Three Bundles to Give

Editor Helping Hand:

I have three bundles of clothing which I would like to give to some needy family, and give you below a partial list of the articles. One Winter coat, one jersey suit, two Summer sweaters, bathing suit, for girl fourteen or fifteen or small woman; one pair of brown suede pumps, size 4; one pair new brown leather shoes, size 5, narrow; two vests for a man (small), two white waists for a girl fourteen or fifteen, 2 suits Winter underwear for girl, and other articles that could be made over. I will send them postpaid if you will send me an address.

E. J. E.

Many thanks. You have been sent the address of Mrs. C. M. W., who is caring for a sick husband, and who can use the things you mention to good advantage.

Needs Easy Shoes

Editor Helping Hand:

I am anxious ot get a pair of old, well-stretched, soft, laced shoes, size six or seven or even eight, for a poor old lady who had a shock ten years ago and is not able to have shoes made to order, and who can only wear a large shoe on the right foot.

MRS. L. F.

Coat and Dress to Give

Editor Helping Hand:

Please send me the address of Mrs. M. A. W., as I want to send her a coat for Winter and a pongee silk dress for Sundays and also a nice hat and house dress. Please give me the address of someone slender, size 36, who wants a nice dress for cool days and also a house dress. Hope I shall be able to help someone from time to time.

MRS. R. H. L.

Many thanks. You have been sent the address of Mrs. M. A. W. and of Mrs. R. P., who will be grateful for the size 36 things you mention.

Things for Girl of 7

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a few things, bloomers and dresses, which will fit a girl about seven years old. I will send them parcel post prepaid to any address you send.

MRS. F. J. S.

Thank You. You have been sent the address of Mrs. J. M., mother of five children, one of them seven.

Still Very Weak

Editor Helping Hand:

I am trying to think of language with which to express my sincere thanks to you all for your generosity in making me such a wonderful donation just in time, for I am subject to a very weak heart and was about ready to give up, but you saved me. I feel very much better today, but am still very weak.

Please accept my sincere gratitude. The young man who called to see me from your paper and gave me such good cheer, asked me about what I needed in wearing apparel, etc. I spoke of some shoes, size five or five and a half, but did not say low shoes. I cannot wear high shoes on account of my ankles swelling. I would like a kimona or bathrobe and a pair of slippers to rest my tired feet.

MRS. M. H.

This is the seventy-year-old lady who was sent five dollars from the Helping Hand Fund, together with two contributions from men in the office.

City Strange to Her

Editor Helping Hand:

I am a mother of three children in a strange city. I came here with one of my children on the advice of a doctor to a Boston hospital. The boy was obliged to remain at the hospital. I wonder if someone would give me something to do so that I can keep my boy supplied with the little luxuries that a child craves and also help along with my own expenses away from home. Our daddy has loafed all Winter and it has left us with many bills to meet, and if I could get some sewing or fancy work I would be more than grateful.

MRS. F. A.

Offers Camp Site

Editor Helping Hand:

I would like to offer land space for camping free to those who cannot afford. I will furnish firewood free for getting it, the use of an ice-chest, space and range. I have several acres of high and dry woodland, pure spring water within a short distance, twenty miles from the South Station, Boston. The conditions: All have to help cheerfully to get firewood, ice and spring water and own supplies. Camp is in walking distance of a lake. I have a small team to help. I am poor, but would like to help.

MRS. M. L. W.

This is very generous. We will forward you the letters that are received in reply, and you can pick the lucky ones.

Books to Pass Along

Editor Helping Hand:

Please send me the addresses of several ex-soldiers or some good boys that have asked you for books to read. I have a lot that I want to pass along.

MRS. C. F. R.

Thank you. Your kind offer will be held for replies.

G. T. Sends $5

The editor wishes to express his sincere thanks to G. T., who brought in five dollars to use at our own discretion. The money has been added to the Helping Hand Fund.

Desperately in Need

Editor Helping Hand:

I hope you will forgive me for asking for help from so far away, but I am a young mother, 29 years old, and have a large family of five small children, ranging in age from one year to nine year, and they are desperately in need of clothes. My husband has been out of work since last November when I was sick for three months before the baby was born. I am expecting another and I haven't got the doctor's bill for the last one paid. My children are two boys, four and five, and girls, eight months, two years and nine years.

MRS. A. M. O.

THE DOCTOR SHOULD MEASURE THEIR PARENTS

By Herbert Kaufman

PHRYNE, Aspasia, Cleopatra and Madame du Barry were neither hurdle-jumpers nor basketball players.

Ancient and medieval beauties took their exercise at the tapestry loom, embroidery frame and harp. Royalty and its favorites were not athletes, and consequently such branches of noble family trees as we now have opportunity to observe, show a very rickety lot of limbs.

Few of Mr. Ziegfeld's prize specimens spring from historical stock—their grandames weren't lute-twanging grandes dames, but lusty field-workers and hard-muscled housewives, who tilled furrows, chopped trees and carried loads of faggots with the best of them.

Dr. Robert T. McKenzie, physical instructor and sculptor, measures five hundred athletic college women and finds them losing beauty and grace—inclined to knock-knees and flat-chests. What he ought to do is examine their parents. The fault more likely lies in that quarter.

Open-air games and gymnastic training are body-builders.

Tennis, swimming, running and leaping model classic figures.

Greek maidens, whose grace is still unequalled, hurled the javelin, hunted the stag, wrestled and danced as strenuously as their brothers.

Depend upon it, the children of the young Californian Dianas won't be flat-chested and knock-kneed, nor would they be if their own mothers had lived in as sensible a period.

Greater Than Kings

The Prince of Wales opens the Sixth International Surgical Conference at London. Twenty-eight countries send delegates.

Mayo of Rochester is present and Banting, the Canadian discoverer of insulin, discusses possibilities with Voronoff, who restores youth to grandfathers.

Knocker of Berne, magician with thyroid glands, explains his latest operating method to Keen of Philadelphia, willing to learn something new even at eighty-six.

Seven hundred and forty-eight such men are more precious to civilization than all the kings of ten centuries.

Their combined knowledge is the supreme wealth of the world, and yet newspapers will devote a few inches of comment to the event and later squander daily pages of space upon the next Buckingham wedding.

Meanwhile, King George visits Westminster Hall to inspect the repairs to that five-hundred-year structure, whose groins once echoed the cries of a mailed champion challenging to mortal combat any denier of his monarch's rights to wear the crown.

A myriad voices would answer such defiance today.

The King takes away with him a casket holding some slivers of the timbers which death-watch beetles have weakened and a sample of the chemical used to destroy them.

Far better for him and his line if there were a political insecticide to preserve palaces against the ideals inexorably burrowing at their foundations.

One Formula for Longevity

Miss Mabel Leedon begins a belated course in memory-training at a Dayton hospital.

She'll never again neglect to see if her steering wheel is unlocked before starting the car. Two passengers accompany her hundred-foot plunge and subsequent crash through a stone wall. Persons who take things for granted shouldn't drive automobiles.

Investigators of the naval balloon in which Lieutenants Roth and Null made their fatal flight on July 4 detect a bit of fabric jammed in the valve of the gas bag. Death flies with carelessness.

John O'Connor, railroad brakeman, hideously mangled by a coal car, forgets his own agony at the thought of his seven-months bride. Doctors amputate both legs without giving anesthetic. Mrs. O'Connor will treasure the memory of his devotion and fortitude, but forever regret that he didn't watch his step.

Stop, look, listen, and grow to a ripe old age.

Disease-Spreading Furs

Cats, dogs and rats spread influenza, ringworm, cancer and bubonic.

Not long ago a virulent plague outbreak through Eastern Europe was traced to infected marmots.

In certain years wolves starve rather than touch rabbits suffering from a mysterious malady which regularly visits the north countries.

If State laws didn't prescribe the sterilization of Chinese hair and bristles, anthrax would soon be uncontrollable.

The appearance in England of a malignant dermitis, caused by wearing the uncleaned skins of diseased animals, warns us to extend and intensify the regulation of fur manufacturing.

Cheap Belgian and German coney pelts, under various names, have thus far done the damage, but when trade with Russia is resumed and the vast accumulated stocks gathered or handled by typhus and smallpox sufferers are thrown on the market, possible consequences may be only estimated by pathologists.

Legislation must consider undesirable foreign merchandise as well as subjects.

Up the Hill and Down Again

The world is not ready for an international constitution. The several nations strong enough to insure an effective League of Nations are too devoted to their separate ambitions and systems to waive either for general benefit.

Europe still prefers to take its war a la carte rather than enjoy a table d'hote peace. If the horrors, the griefs, the sacrifices, the privations, the burdens and the losses since 1914 have not composed differences, there is slim chance that hot debate and cold expediency will later succeed where so compelling arguments continued to fail. Trade and politics, not logic and humanity, rule the continent.

Remorseless purpose and insatiate enterprise hold the future.

And as tomorrow discloses ripe opportunities for profit and power, vainglorious, ruthless men will, as of yore, itch to rank with Caesar—and seek to humble a neighbor's rank and divide his wealth.

Only when arrogance, cruelty, greed, cunning and racial conceit are conquered shall good faith speak the last word.

War has not been written off the map, and we had best figure accordingly.
